A FATAL ACCIDENT.

LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY.

Steamer at the Pioneer Wood Pulp Company's Blows up with Terrific Force causing Great Damage.

On Tuesday one of the big boilers used to steam wood at the Pioneer Wood Pulp Company's mill blew up killing one man instantly and probably fatally injuring another and bruising two others.

The victims are Charles Pagel, killed instantly and Adolph Middlesteadt injured so badly that it is not known whether he will recover or not and Henry Podawiltz and Ferdinand Pagel bruised about the head and body by flying debris. Pagel was 50 years old and unmarried, and Middlesteadt is only nineteen.

Besides the loss of life the Pulp company has sustained a serious loss in the wrecking of one end of the mill and the side of the engine house, as well as the loss of the wrecked boiler.

The boiler that blew up was a big one about nine feet in diameter and about fourteen feet long. It was used to steam the wood in before it was made into pulp. It had been filled with wood about nine o'clock Tuesday morning and the steam turned on as customary. It was the custom to carry about forty pounds of steam on the tank when in use and the foreman stated that the steam gauge registered just forty pounds a few minutes before the explosion, which occurred about five minutes to twelve.

The force of the explosion was something terrific and in looking over the wreck it is hard to imagine how so much damage could be done to surrounding property. Chas. Pagel, the man killed, was passing by on the outside of the mill when the explosion came and he was lifted from the ground and hurled a distance of fifty feet, falling on the ice in the pond a lifeless and inanimate mass. His death was undoubtedly instantaneous as his skull was smashed and his brains oozed out and stained the ice where he lay.

Middlesteadt stood at one of the pulp machines in a direct line with the boiler that burst. When the end blew out of the steamer the huge boiler was blown ahead into the mill a distance of twenty-five feet, carrying everything before it and smashing huge timbers and beams like matches. The boiler struck a barker in its flight and demolished the machine, the pieces of casting being thrown about in a promiscuous manner. What it was that struck young Middlesteadt is not known, but he received a fearful blow on the side of the face that fractured his skull. It was claimed by some that the young man was able to make his way out of the mill alone while others say he had to be carried out. The latter is probably true, as it is not likely that he would be able to walk after sustaining the hurt he did.

Podawiltz and Pagel, the other two injured men were in the boiler room when the accident occurred. This boiler room is separated from the mill proper by a passage way about ten feet wide. When the explosion occurred the end of the boiler room was caved in and the roof torn off at the end, the whole end of the structure being wrecked and the bricks, boards, beams and wood from the steamer blown in as far as the steam boilers. When the explosion came the two men were knocked to the floor and partially covered by the flying debris, but neither was rendered insensible. The room was full of escaping steam and dust but they managed to get free from the wreckage and make their way to the partly jammed door and get out. Their injuries were not of a serious nature, being bruises about the body and head. To look at the boiler room after the explosion one could not help wondering how either of the men escaped with his life.

The head of the big steamer was blown bodily from the tank proper and landed on the ice of the pond only a few feet from where Mr. Pagel lay. It was not blown straight from the end of the tank, but apparently tore loose at one side and swung part way round and then went through the building with awful force. The wood from the tank was blown for hundreds of feet and scattered about the yard in a manner that impresses one strongly as to the force of the explosion.

While the wreck is a disastrous one spectators wondered that more people were not seriously injured and it was a mere matter of chance that so few people were in the path of the death dealing engine. Where the break occured in the tank the iron or steel is worn down quite thin either from the action of acid in the wood or the natural course of wear and tear on an affair of this kind and must have given way under any circumstances in a short time.

Justice Cooper impaneled a jury composed of G. W. Davis, H. Boetcher, Clark Lyon, Charles Briere, E. C. Ketchum and D. M. Huntington. These gentlemen viewed the remains on the day of the accident and after looking over the premises brought in a verdict the following day to the effect that the deceased had come to his death by the explosion of a defective steam tank in the mill of the Pioneer Wood Pulp Co. and that said steam tank was unfit for use.

In justice to the Pioneer company it is only right to state that the tank that blew up was inspected last summer and was considered to be absolutely safe both by the owners and the workmen at the pressure of forty pounds to the square inch. The other tank carries 60 pounds pressure as it is a smaller tank and capable of standing a greater strain.

A boiler maker who viewed the wreck the day after the accident stated that in his estimation the tank should have stood a pressure of forty pounds with ease and that he did not believe the tank had exploded at that pressure.

The loss to the Pulp company will be about $1,000, to replace the big tank alone necessitating an outlay of $600. The boiler house is also nearly a complete wreck.

BURNED WITH GASOLINE.

Painter at Court House has a Narrow Escape.

Theodore Laska, a painter who has been at work at the court house for some time met with a painful accident on Saturday, which resulted in some very bad burns.

Laska in company with a fellow workman was engaged in cleaning some paint from the stairs with gasoline, Laska doing the rubbing while his partner held a match so that he could see to do the work. The match burned out and the man lit a piece of waste and held it up for a light. This worked all right until a piece of the waste burned off and dropped to the floor, when Laska found himself enveloped in flames, which shot up his sleeves and burned his wrists, hands and arms in a horrible manner.

Dr. Pomainville dressed the man's wounds and it is probable that he will be laid up for a month although there will be no serious results from the burns.

WORK COMMENCED.

Northwestern Special Construction Train at Plainfield.

The train was delivered to the Central at Neenah and was taken through direct to Plainfield, passing through here at about 2:30 o'clock. The outfit is the property of the contractors who are to do the grading for the new Northwestern Princeton-Marshfield extension, and work is to be commenced right away. The new line will cross the Central's track near Bancoft and the work is to be commenced at that point and will be extended in both directions, toward Princeton, through Almond, and toward Marshfield through Grand Rapids. This is not the line which it is proposed to extend through this city except that the Stevens Point line will connect with it somewhere in the vicinity of Bancoft if it is decided to build it.

It has the endorsement of the Madison and Milwaukee barbers and an effort will be made to secure the passage of the bill by influential politicians.

BURNED TO DEATH.

SIGEL FARMERS HOUSE BURNS.

The Hired Man Caught in the Building and Cremated.—Origin of Fire Unknown.

On Wednesday morning the house belonging to James Rouhan who resides about four miles from this city in the town of Sigel, was burned to the ground and John Anderson, a man who was working for Rouhan was roasted to death in the flames.

So far as can be learned the fire started at about 3:30 o'clock Wednesday morning and when discovered by Mr. Rouhan had made such headway that nothing could be done to stop it, and he succeeded in saving only a part of his clothes so rapid did the flames spread.

Mr. Rouhan is a bachelor and his house was built in two sections about four feet apart and connected by a passage way and doors. It had been Mr. Rouhan's habit to keep a hired man that was married who occupied one part of the house and Mr. Rouhan the other, but the past summer Mr. Anderson has been with Mr. Rouhan, and he was also a single man.

On the morning in question Mr. Rouhan was awakened by some noise in the other part of the house where Mr. Anderson slept and arising from his bed he went to the door that connected the two buildings to find what was the trouble. Upon opening it the flames rushed out and into his face singeing his hair and whiskers, and so fierce was the fire that he could not get the door shut again. Finding it impossible to do anything Mr. Rouhan rushed to his bed and hastily gathering up the clothing he had doffed the evening before he rushed to the door, when he found that the other part of the building was entirely enveloped in flames.

Neighbors who saw the fire hurried to the scene but were unable to do anything as the buildings were a mass of ruins when they arrived.

The remains of Anderson were found in the opposite corner of the building to which the bed was situated which made it evident that the man had either been up when some accident set the building afire or else had been awakened by the fire but was unable to find his way out. The origin of the fire is unknown and Mr. Rouhan cannot even surmise how it happened. Anderson was a single man about thirty-six years old.

An inquest was held on the body on Wednesday but no new facts were developed either as to how the fire originated or whether it was accidental or of incendiary origin. The body of the burned man was an unrecognizable mass of flesh, when taken from the ruins, both the arms and legs being burned from the trunk.

Lost his Bearings

Christ Nelson, who is employed as grader at Arpin, had a narrow escape from climbing the golden stair on Saturday evening. He was coming to this city that evening on a three-wheeled handcar commonly known as a velocipede and had got past Vesper and was on the home stretch when he met the north bound "cannon ball" on the Marshfield & Southeastern. For some unknown reason Mr. Nelson did not see the train coming until it was very close to him, in spite of the fact that the engine showed a bright headlight. As a consequence he rolled off from his velocipede in a very unceremonious manner just before the engine struck the machine.

When the train was stopped Mr. Nelson was found to be all right, but there were pieces of handcar of different sizes in all directions. The man was badly rattled and could not explain why he did not see the locomotive headlight.

After a Bull Moose.

Wausau Record: Peter J. Hansen and Henry and John Switzer, while hunting deer in the town of Harrison last Saturday, saw and shot a large moose bull, something very seldom seen in this vicinity. They traced the animal several miles by the blood that dropped from his wound but finally lost the trail. On Monday they again saw the animal and shot at him. This time he was badly wounded and bled very freely and the boys started on his trail, but could not overtake him. They followed the trail to Hogarty's, losing it there on Tuesday night. Mr. Hansen is positive the animal cannot live and if his remains are found in the woods will give the finder $25 for the head.

By means of a stick to the end of which was tied strips of cloth with a loop, Dilton manipulated the levers which opened the doors into the corridor from his cell. He then tore out a heavy piece of ventilator pipe in his cell with which he pried and pounded at the bars across the windows and had two of them bent aside when Sheriff Kanouse, who was sleeping in his office, was wakened by the noise and interrupted the proceedings.

Oshkosh, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—A suit of long standing came to trial today in the circuit court in which Justice J. E. Dodge of the Supreme court of the state was one of the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs set up that they bought the land on the representation that it had 13,000,000 feet of timber and that after the timber had been cut the land would be good for farming purposes. It is said that the mayor has stated that he would be willing to acquiesce in the demands made providing this backing be given. To just what extent he will go, however, is not known as there is on the other hand a sentiment against the gambling and open-saloon policy. Those favoring such a policy claim that it will be resumed once more. The chief of police has stated that he stands ready to carry out any orders that the mayor may give, so that no friction is expected on that score.

GRANTS HIM A PARDON.

La Crosse Man Set Free by Gov. Scofield.

SENT UP FOR MURDER.

Charles Press, Convicted of Killing a Man for His Money, is Given His Liberty.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Gov. Scofield has pardoned Charles Press, serving a life sentence at Waupun for murder committed in this city. Press was released late yesterday afternoon.

The granting of the pardon brings back to mind one of the most mysterious crimes of the city's history. Nels White was murdered at about midnight, July 22, 1886, on the steps of a resort kept by Emma Bigelow. Three men had a few moments previous to the shooting tried to force their way into the back door of the place, but were unsuccessful. They came around from the back of the house just as White was going down the steps and shot him without warning, rifling his pockets and disappearing in the darkness.

White ran a saloon and early in the evening he displayed a roll of bills, amounting to about $400, to three men, of the trio Press was a party. He was said to have also uttered threats against White. The latter closed his saloon, while the trio was there, and hurried to the resort.

Press' conviction was purely on circumstantial evidence and after two trials, Judge Newman, afterwards Supreme judge, tried the case and set aside the first verdict on the grounds that there was insufficient evidence. Upon reaching the Supreme court he interceded with different governors in behalf of Press, but would never make a written application.

Attorney Hood, who was his attorney, and other prominent men here, have been untiring in their efforts to get him out and have at last succeeded. The grounds set forth are that the evidence was purely circumstancial and Press was not any nearer than two blocks at the time of the murder, according to the evidence. Kennedy and Williams, the other two men, escaped, and have never been heard from. Press was captured in Kansas City by Detective Al Byrne, since dead, and Sheriff W. J. Scott, now superintendent of public property for the state of Wisconsin.

WON'T PAY NEWSPAPERS.

Wood County Board Refuses to Settle for Election Printing.

Grand Rapids, Wis., Nov. 24.—The county board of supervisors adopted the following report of special committee on printers' bills aggregating several hundred dollars:

The undersigned special committee, to whom was referred the question of the liability of Wood county to pay certain items, charges contained in printers' bills for publication and printing of notices of partisan caucuses and calls for conventions, together with blank ballots and other papers and reports for use at such caucuses and conventions, would respectfully report that we have carefully considered the questions involved, and have examined chapter 311 of the laws of Wisconsin, enacted in the year 1899 relating thereto, and we are of the opinion that none of the expenses which may be incurred under the provisions of said chapter are a legal charge against the county.

J. W. COCHRAN,

Stoughton, Wis., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Mayor O. K. Roe, who at the last election was elected assemblyman from this district, announces that he will make the city of Stoughton a Christmas present of a fine clock, which will be installed in the tower of the new city hall, which building is now nearing completion. The clock will have four faces with 4-foot dials, and when in position will be 75 feet above the ground. Mayor Roe estimates the expense of this timepiece at about $1000.

KILLED ON EVE OF WEDDING DAY.

Death of Albert Styers of Beloit Companion Who Accidentally Shot Him, Almost Crazed.

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—The accidental killing of Albert Styers by his companion, a young man named Shank, while hunting rabbits Sunday, is particularly sad as young Styers was to have been married yesterday afternoon to a young woman of this city. Shank has acted queerly since the accident, talking incoherently and at times laughing and crying. It is feared he will lose his mind.

ONLY ONE MOURNER AT THE FUNERAL.

Aged Man of Two Rivers and His Adopted Daughter Lived Aloof.

Two Rivers, Wis., Nov. 27.—William Rohrbach, a widower, aged 70 years, is dead. He lived on a farm six miles west of here with an adopted daughter who had not been to town for fifteen years up to the occasion of her father's death, when she walked in alone in the darkness of the night to notify the undertaker. The funeral in a country cemetery was singularly desolate. There was no ceremony at the grave and no friends or mourners but the adopted daughter. They had lived strangely aloof from neighbors, avoiding friendships.

ON THE DECREASE.

People of Wisconsin Are Not Drinking as Much Beer as They Used To.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—"Beer-drinking is on the decrease in Wisconsin." So said Henry Hagemeister of this city, treasurer of the Wisconsin Brewers' association. Mr. Hagemeister says the days of fortune-making in the brewing business have passed, and that large brewing establishments now fail to return a fair percentage on the money invested.

"For this condition the brewing firms are largely responsible," he said. "It is because of their practice of cutting one another. The decrease in beer sales is due mainly to the increased private consumption in homes and the more than corresponding decrease in saloon patronage."

Mr. Hagemeister explained that when men drink beer at home they usually drink merely what they want, and the total consumption in this way is comparatively small. In saloons, the social phase leads men to drink beyond the mere desires of their appetites, and the result to the brewer is easily deducted.

FARMERS URGED TO RAISE BEETS.

Menomonee Falls Sugar Company Promise to Pay Well for the Vegetable.

Menomonee Falls, Wis., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—A highly important and interesting meeting of farmers was held here Saturday afternoon. The meeting was called by the Wisconsin Sugar company and was for the purpose of bringing the farmers and company to some understanding and to again interest the farmers in sugar beet growing. Over 100 farmers, representing ten different localities, were in attendance, many of whom had lost considerable on beets raised for the original company that failed and they were naturally very backward about going into beet raising for the new firm. Nearly all of the officers of the company were present. A. Gellelman was the first to address the meeting. He talked very frankly to the people, stating briefly the company's position. "We have the plant and the financial backing necessary to equip and successfully operate the factory," he said. "One thing only is lacking. We must have the sugar beets. Will you farmers raise them?" The company would like 4000 acres, but must have a guarantee of at least 2500 acres before they can begin work. The daily capacity of the present plant is about 350 tons. The season lasts 100 days. This would mean 35,000 tons, which is about the quantity of beets that can be raised on 2500 acres of land.

R. G. Wagner, president of the Wisconsin Sugar company, has closely investigated the beet-sugar question from all sides. He has traveled extensively through Michigan and other beet-raising states. Prof. Henry of the state experiment station was unable to attend the meeting, but he wrote very encouragingly to the promoters of the "pioneer sugar industry of Wisconsin."

The cost per acre for raising sugar beets is $30, the yield fifteen tons, average price $12 per ton, thus giving the farmer 100 per cent. on his investment. These estimates are very conservative, Mr. Wagner stated, and in most cases the returns would be greater. He also suggested that a committee of farmers, representing the different localities, be chosen to investigate the finances of the company and to hold in trust the $25,000 bond offered by the company to secure the farmers' crops.

J. B. Whittaker of Menomonee Falls suggested the following for the committee: Peter Wright, chairman, and Henry Tenneson of Menomonee; Michael Jonan, G. W. Everts, Granville; Albert L. Brown, Lewis Stark of Germantown; J. Stark, Menomonee; R. Weaver, Lisbon; and by unanimous vote of the meeting they were declared elected.

The farmers are to be paid as follows, on the 1st and 15th of each month, for beets delivered the previous two weeks:

$4 per ton for 12 per cent. beets.
$4.25 per ton for 13 per cent. beets.
$4.50 per ton for 14 per cent. beets.
$4.75 per ton for 15 per cent. beets.
$5 per ton for 16 and over per cent. beets.

Beets testing under 12 per cent. are not profitable for sugar purposes, but will be taken at a slightly reduced figure.

DISCOVER A BIG CAVE.

Great Caverns Found in Hills Near St. Joseph's Ridge, La Crosse County.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Jacob Ritter of St. Joseph's Ridge, this county, reports the discovery of a mammoth cave in the hills near his home. Mr. Ritter and two other men have partly explored the cavern and find that it is larger than any in this part of the state. After entering the first opening from the outside one enters a chamber at least fourteen rods long and in the neighborhood of forty feet high, after which there is another of the same height and about two rods longer. Between them is a huge rock, under which it is necessary to crawl to get from one to the other. The party were in the cave two and a half hours and did not then find the end, for the oil in their lantern gave out and they returned to the opening for fear of getting lost. The only sight of life found was a solitary legbone of some animal. There were no signs of any mineral deposits or stalactites. The cavern will be more thoroughly explored.

TWO HUNTERS KILLED.

The killing was purely accidental. Three were in the party and it is said that Styers stepped in front of a gun as it was discharged at a rabbit.

Waupun, Wis., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Henry C. Kramer, aged 22 years, was killed yesterday afternoon while out hunting rabbits. He was crawling under a fence and in some way his gun was discharged, the shot nearly severing his head from his body. His companions brought the body back to the city. An inquest was held today and a verdict of accidental death was returned.

Says If Jesus was a Customer at Stores He Would Not Buy After 6 O'clock.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—"If Jesus were a customer at Green Bay stores he would do His shopping early and would not make purchases after 6 o'clock." This statement was made by Rev. William Forkell in an address in the Peoples pulpit on "The Ethics of Early Closing." The address was a strong appeal for the closing of local retail stores at 6 o'clock and a half-week and holiday for the clerks, whom he characterized as "the livery horses of the commercial world." Mr. Forkell is deeply interested in the matter and will make a personal canvass among the merchants to secure the proposed benefits for the clerks.

COUNTERFEITERS AT WORK IN GREEN BAY

Bad Dollars Placed in Circulation but the Workmanship is Very Crude.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Counterfeiters have operated successfully in Green Bay with spurious dollars. It has not been learned, as yet, to what extent they worked, but it is believed they operated on a small scale. Saloonkeepers were the victims in the several cases reported. Lead is the principal metal in the counterfeit and the imitation of the standard dollar is very crude. A local bank cashier who examined one of the coins said: "Any man who would accept one of these rude counterfeits deserves to be victimized." The matter will be reported by a local bank to the United States treasury for investigation.

SWINDLED A FARMER.

Fred Kruthols, Living Near Waukesha, Is Fleeced Out of Considerable Money.

Baraboo, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Fred Kruthols, who resides on a farm near Waukesha, Wis., was in Baraboo yesterday with a tale of woe. Some days ago a stranger appeared at his place and induced him to become an agent for a cheap make of watches. He was to pay the stranger but a nominal price for the watches when delivered and was made to believe that he could sell them to his friends in the neighborhood for a good profit. After some persuasion he was induced to sign a contract for some of the goods and this was placed in an envelope as if to be mailed to the place from which the goods were to be delivered. The stranger went away and left the letter. Mr. Kruthols supposing that the stranger had forgotten it. He opened the letter in a short time and what was his surprise but to find that he had signed an order for watches, chains and charms, the total sum amounting to about $6000. As stated in the order each chain was put in at $27 each and the same price for the watches and charms. He then realized that he had not signed the order as first shown to him but that another one had been substituted when the deal was being made. The next day two men appeared and these frightened Mr. Kruthols into believing that it was a penitentiary offense to open a letter as he had done and that unless the matter was made right that an arrest was sure to follow. After considerable discussion it was finally agreed that Mr. Kruthols take four of the chains, watches and charms at $5 each and that he give his note for $213. This was done and the men then disappeared.

After they had gone he read in the Evening Wisconsin about the same game being worked near Baraboo and came to this city to see if he could locate the swindlers.

He says the note is now at the express office at Waukesha and he realizes that it must be paid and regretted that his trip to Baraboo was a fool's errand, for he desires very much to find the present location of the swindlers.

La Crosse Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Dispatches to Viroqua friends from Judge Wyman of this circuit, now at Buffalo in a sanitarium, state that there has been a sudden change for the worse. He has had judges from other circuits hold court here for some months. His condition of late seemed to be somewhat better. The latest dispatch says he is failing fast.

They were posed as beggars for some time past, holding up people on the streets.

WOMEN MUST SLEEP.

Avoid Nervous Prostration.

If you are dangerously sick what is the first duty of your physician? He quiets the nervous system, he deadens the pain, and you sleep well.

Friends ask, "what is the cause?" and the answer comes in pitying tones, nervous prostration. It came upon you so quietly in the beginning, that you were not alarmed, and when sleep deserted you night after night until your eyes fairly burned in the darkness, then you tossed in nervous agony praying for sleep.

MRS. A. HARTLEY.

You ought to have known that when you ceased to be regular in your courses, and you grew irritable without cause, that there was serious trouble somewhere.

You ought to know that indigestion, exhaustion, womb displacements, fainting, dizziness, headache, and backache send the nerves wild with affright, and you cannot sleep.

Mrs. Hartley, of 221 W. Congress St., Chicago, Ill., whose portrait we publish, suffered all these agonies, and was entirely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; her case should be a warning to others, and her cure carry conviction to the minds of every suffering woman of the unfailing efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THE ROSE HAT.

IN GAY NEW YORK.

Scenes and Incidents of Everyday Life in the Paris of America.

"Box trotting" is more of a fad than ever at this year's horseshow. A well-known actress who witnessed the opening last night coined it "box trotting," and in half a day the phrase has stuck hard and fast to Madison Square garden. It is the usual round of devotion paid by well-known society men, who go from one box to another and in time cover their acquaintanceship list thoroughly. Perhaps the most picturesque exhibit of the show is the throng which moves slowly along the "clothes walk," which is another bit of horseshow slang. The crowd is so great that its progress is necessarily slow, but to the majority this is a satisfactory condition, for it gives opportunity to observe each box and its occupants. One cynical observer compared it to a holiday at a museum. The crowd moved along, lists in hand, computing numbers and gazing at certain society people as though they were rare curiosities. This procession is cosmopolitan and picturesque—a feature of the week well worth studying.

New York has never been so crowded before except on the occasion of some great public celebration. All the hotels are filled to their capacity and the leading ones have turned away hundreds. Primarily the horseshow is responsible, but outside of that everybody with a dollar to spend is heading for the metropolis—buyers from every city, accompanied by their wives, and business men who are taking pleasure with their business. After the horseshow is over there will be more room, but from the manner which the country is pouring into the city the hotelmen believe that vacant rooms will be a scarcity for some time.

A number of well-known four-in-hand drivers will hold a meeting at horseshow time, to talk over a proposition to make a quick trip from New York to Atlantic City, in order to establish a record for a one-day run on a coach. The distance to Atlantic City is 155 miles, and it is proposed to use eighteen teams, which will be placed at relays along the route. Each one of the men who go into the scheme will drive for one stage, and some remarkably quick time will be made. The old public coach Good Times, which formerly was operated from the Waldorf-Astoria to Fordham, will be used. The longest one-day trip ever made on a coach in this country was on the old New York-Philadelphia public coach, which was operated daily from the Waldorf to the Stratford in Philadelphia, some five years ago. A number of the coaching men interested in that project will take part in the Atlantic City trip. The old coaching route between New York and the Quaker City will be used for a portion of the way.

A paper writing purporting to be the last will of Mary Kiernan, known as "Apple Mary" and as "One-Shoe Mary," of South Water street was filed in the surrogate's office. The alleged will describes the testatrix as "Mrs. Levi P. Morton, otherwise known as Miss Mary Kiernan." It was signed "Mrs. Levi P. Morton." A petition made by Mrs. Celia Foskett, asking that the paper writing be admitted to probate as the last will of Mrs. Levi P. Morton, otherwise Mary Kiernan, gave the value of the personal estate left by the decedent as $12,000. The value of the real estate was said to be unknown.

One of the most beautiful debutantes in the ranks of the 400 recently eloped with a clubman some thirty years her elder. The romance began last summer at Newport, where the clubman goes each summer and where the girl's people have a magnificent villa. On her twenty-first birthday the young woman would be possessed of $250,000 in her own right. Last week the debutante had a family tiff with her mother. That evening the mother found a short note on her daughter's pin cushion. It read: "I have gone away with the man I love." Later came a telegram dated West Point. The girl was there. She had gone straight to the home of her elderly lover's aged mother. "I'm here to marry him," the dispatch said, but she didn't marry. The mother of the man stopped that in short order. "Go home, my dear," she said, tenderly. "My son has not the money to marry you, and think of the scandal." And the girl went back penitent.

Miss Blanche Kelleher, for three years a member of Daniel Frohman's stock company, is to be married to George Hickson, a lumber merchant at Chicago, at the Church of the Transfiguration on Thanksgiving morning. The ceremony will take place at 10 o'clock and Dr. Houghton will officiate. The Rialto did not know of this romance in theatrical life until today, although Miss Kelleher and Mr. Hickson have been engaged for some time. Only the members of Daniel Frohman's company will be present at the ceremony.

A box at the horseshow that was the center of great interest was occupied by Mrs. Astor, her granddaughter, Miss Helen Roosevelt, and James Roosevelt, the young lady's father. Miss Roosevelt is one of the notable debutantes this season. In certain particulars she has the advantage over her debutante cousin, Miss Sarah Van Alen. She is decidedly a prepossessing young lady, with dark hair and eyes, a fresh complexion and well-moulded features. She is, as well, tall and well formed. She was becomingly dressed in silver gray polka-dotted satin and wore a large black hat. Mrs. Astor is apparently enjoying excellent health. She enjoyed the show as well as the constant attention she received. Mrs. John Jacob Astor visited the show, also. To her should be awarded the palm of beauty. She was with the Misses Gerry and was becomingly attired in a gown of snuff-colored cloth and velvet and wore a small toque to match.

From 9 o'clock in the morning until 6 at night on Thursday a line of ticket buyers for the Bernhardt engagement wound in and out of the lobby of the Garden theater. All of the seats for the first week are sold. Even the American managers of the great French actress were forced to buy from speculators seats for friends whose demands for tickets at box-office rates could not be well refused.

Mrs. John W. Mackay arrived from Paris on the steamship Oceanic for a sojourn of two months in the United States. She is still devoted to the memory of her son, and it was only slowly and reluctantly that she went out of mourning. When she did so she speedily opened her hospitable doors and gave two dinner parties in one week in her beautiful home in Carlton House Terrace, London. This has a famous marble staircase which is said to have cost $300,000. Not long ago a requiem mass was ordered by her to be celebrated at the Madeleine, in Paris, for her son, William. She brings to the repose of his soul all the resources of the church to which she belongs. Mrs. Mackay's return to society is greatly appreciated, for she has real popularity among a host of friends because of her charming manner and kindliness.

L. Z. Leiter, accompanied by his elder daughter, is going abroad in January. They will proceed directly to Egypt, where several months will be spent. Mrs. Leiter will remain at her Dupont circle home with Miss Daisy Leiter, who will enjoy the winter season at the capital, from which she has been absent nearly two years. The Misses Leiter are spending the present week in New York.

Some interesting statistics are to be found in the season's programme of dances beginning this week and ending on Ash Wednesday, which comes early this season, on February 20. The meetings of the dancing classes, such subscription dances as the Southern or Wednesday cotillons, the two assembly balls and the annual charity ball make up a list of ninety-one dances for the three months of the winter season. Of these, forty go to Delmonico's. The Waldorf-Astoria gets twenty-eight, including the two assembly balls, which involve about as much expenditure as all the smaller dances put together. Sherry, who once had a large proportion of society's dances, gets seventeen of the ninety-one, and Dodsworth six.

The souvenirs for the fiftieth performance of Grace George, in "Her Majesty," at the Manhattan, this evening, are extremely-taking gold-plated frames in rococo design, with jeweled crown ornamentation, each containing an autographed photograph of Miss George.

Mrs. F. O. French and her daughter, Miss Elsie French, who is to become the bride of Alfred G. Vanderbilt on January 1, will return to their Newport villa, "Harbor View," tonight from this city, where they have been arranging for the wedding gown and trousseau. On Saturday Col. Eaton of the British army, who served in the Boer war, will sail for New York with his wife, the sister of the bride-elect, to be present at the wedding.

The wedding, which is to be a quiet affair, will be solemnized in Trinity church, and Bishop Potter and Rev. Henry Morgan Stone of Trinity church will officiate. The bride will be given away by her only brother, Ames Tuck French, a New York banker.

The mania for combinations has struck even the fraternity which caters to New York's love for fancy dancing. Every professional cakewalker has cast his lot with the new organization, which has raised the price of "walking" and caused managers to wax meditative.

It's almost an old story to tell of stock records being broken, yet that is what happened Wednesday—over 1,800,000 shares having been dealt in. In forty-five minutes 525,000 shares changed hands. Fat pickings for the broker colony.

Uncle Sam's New Diplomacy.

How far our new diplomacy will carry where most depend upon circumstances and our own interests. Under the old diplomacy the dread of foreign alliances was such that even using it to oppose them with another power was studiously avoided. The new policy is daring and has shown that it will not shrink from combining its strength when thereby we may gain what single-handed we might lose. This policy involves no alliances, nor need the most timid and credulous suspect what in the nature of things cannot take place. One path was never a fortress's one even when it was most narrow, but the new American diplomacy must command admiration for its broad straightforwardness.—World's Work.

A LIFE SAVED.

A Druggist's Timely and Straightforward Advice Saves the Life of a Prominent Citizen.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Among the Catholic Foresters in this city, none is better known or more universally esteemed than Mr. S. P. Rush, conductor (president) of Holy Name Court, No. 26.

His many friends, inside the Order and outside of its ranks, were therefore much startled to learn that his life was in danger, he having Bright's disease, that most terrible and fatal disease.

Mr. Rush, however, made a grand struggle for his life, taking prescriptions and pills and powders, until his stomach refused food. At last, his local druggist, guided by the numerous inquiries being made at his store for Dodd's Kidney Pills, advised Mr. Rush to buy and try some. This he did, and to his delight he was restored to health and strength.

Mr. Rush says that after commencing the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills he felt much better, but it took two months to effect a cure.

"I took nothing else but Dodd's Kidney Pills during that time, so I know that I owe life and health to them."

What this wonderful remedy has done for Mr. Rush it will certainly do for anyone. It is the only remedy that has never failed to cure Bright's disease.

Mr. Rush is just now receiving the congratulations of his friends, but always finds time to say a good word for the medicine that saved his life.

To Quench Thirst.

A unique manner of quenching thirst is recommended by a physician. He states that thirst disappears and perspiration is diminished by keeping a small round pebble in the mouth. He has gone as long as eight and one-half hours in a broiling sun with nothing but dry biscuits and cheese for a lunch, and at the end of that time was not suffering from thirst.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

PAIN OPENED HER SKULL

Mrs. Lasher's Remarkable Story—Dr. Greene's Nervura Cured Her.

MRS. FRED. C. LASHER, JR.

The case of Mrs. Fred. C. Lasher, Jr., a well-known woman of Westport, N. Y., is one of the most interesting on record. It is an actual fact that headaches caused her head to split.

"For thirteen years," she says, "I suffered from terrible headaches night and day, until the bones of my skull opened so that the doctor could lay his thumb right into the opening on to my brain. Two doctors attended me and claimed that I was on the verge of insanity. I was under their care for nine years, but got no relief. Then I tried Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and inside of a year the bones of my head had taken their natural shape again."

That Mrs. Lasher's statements are true is vouched for by reliable men of Westport, and by a Justice of the Peace there. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy cured Mrs. Lasher when all other remedies failed, and it cures thousands of suffering women every year. If your head aches, if you cannot sleep and are weak and nervous, remember that this great curative agent, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, will make you well and strong.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is a physician's prescription, formulated from a discovery after years of investigation and experiment. Dr. Greene, 35 West 14th St., New York City, is the discoverer. He can be consulted free personally or by letter.

Carry Own Insurance.

Sheboygan county has a scheme for carrying the insurance on its county buildings that is worth considering by Wood county.

At the meeting of the county board of that county last week, a resolution was introduced providing that, at the expiration of the present policies, the county shall carry its own insurance. The resolution recites that, whereas the county pays $1,500 every three years for insurance and the loss in the past twenty-five years has been but $465, and there are several home insurance companies in the county that are a success, the county should establish a sinking fund for the insurance of the county buildings. Whenever an insurance policy now in force expires, the county treasurer shall deposit the amount of the premium in a reliable bank. After all the policies shall have expired the board shall raise by taxes the sum of $500 annually which shall also be deposited in the insurance fund until the whole amount has reached $5,000, after which no more money shall be raised by taxes, but the interest shall annually be added to the fund.

T. A. Taylor has been on the lookout for some time for a book that was printed on vellum, out of the Simon pure kind like you don't see in every book case. One day this week he received a letter from England telling him that a book had been found that answered all the specifications and could be bought at the reasonable price of £55 or $275. The book was one that had been hand printed by the monks along about the year 1480 and was adorned with many fancy initial letters in red, also illustrations, and was on vellum. To one with Mr. Taylor's love for the ancient and beautiful in literature this offer was certainly an enticing one and he has it under consideration.

The Jerusalem we see today is not the one that gladdened the eyes of the Holy Family journeying from Nazareth to worship in the Temple. That city lies buried forty, fifty, sometimes over a hundred feet deep in wastage piled in the overthrow of many sieges. The crimson banner of the Moslem floats above the Tower of David, used as barracks, and the Turkish sentinel pacing his rounds looks with ineffable scorn on the Christian. The crumbling Tower of Antonia, the citadel of the temple is occupied by the Governor of Jerusalem, and, if possession counts in the law, it is his right, for he held it before William the Conqueror was crowned with the Saxon's crown in Westminster Abbey.—Mrs. Lew Wallace in the December Ladies' Home Journal.

The life of the average tramp is one of eating, drinking, loving and sleeping. The greatest of these four accomplishments is in getting something to drink, and all sorts of schemes are resorted to to secure a drink of anything that will intoxicate. The latest plea set up by the traveling hobo is reported from Ripon, where a tramp worked upon the sympathy of the druggists by calling on them and pretending to have a hard cough and begged a sample bottle of the numerous cough medicines that they give away. After securing a sufficient number the tramp repairs to his box-car home and enjoys the contents of the little bottles. As the samples contain a percentage of chloroform, it is said that a "feeling of repose" is forthcoming in a short time.

Photographer O. P. Menzel has been making special effort to supply the holiday trade with all the latest fads in the photograph line this year, and his new lot of samples put out this week are brilliant examples of what can be accomplished by photography when handled by one well versed in the art. There are so many new styles and sizes in photograph cards nowadays that a person who only has his picture "took" once in sixteen years is very apt to be sadly behind the times. The time was only a few years ago when going to the photographer was like visiting the dentist and the pictures turned out bore all the evidences of a painful operation. However, this is all changed now and the photos are made so quick that it is a real pleasure to go through the operation. The styles and shapes are especially attractive this year and those contemplating getting photos should look over Mr. Menzel's display.

COMING TO AMERICA.

Story that President Kruger will Seek a Temporary Home in the United States.

New York, Nov. 27.—Samuel Pearson, formerly commissary-general of the Transvaal army, who has just arrived in this country with a number of other Boer refugees, is responsible for the statement that President Kruger will probably soon seek refuge and a permanent home here.

"President Kruger will leave Paris very soon, I believe," said Gen. Pearson, "and come to America, where with his wife he will make a home until such time as our arms have triumphed and he can return to the South African republic to take up again his office as chief executive of the Boers."

Paris, Nov. 27.—Mr. Kruger began a busy day this morning by making an official call. Before 9 o'clock he departed from the Hotel Scribe, driving in a landau surrounded by republican guards and by bicycle policemen to visit the premier, M. Waldeck-Rousseau. He was accompanied by Dr. Leyds, Dr. Van Hammel and Delegate Fischer. The party was met at the entrance to the premier's saloon by M. Ulrich, director of the cabinet, who introduced the visitors to the prime minister. The interview took place in M. Waldeck-Rousseau's private study and lasted ten minutes. At half-past 9 o'clock the premier, accompanied by M. Ulrich, returned the call.

JOHN BULL BEWILDERED.

Nobody Knows When Costly Boer War will Stop.

London, Nov. 27.—The meeting of Parliament next week will not occur too soon. The public is dazed and bewildered by the confusion which prevails in South Africa.

The trend of events will be clearer when the ministers are in their places to answer questions and the leader writers are provided with cues by those behind the scenes. A war costing $7,500,000 weekly is going on and nobody seems to know when it is likely to stop. Everybody is in a critical mood. Lord Roberts is sharply criticised for a mistaken policy of leniency; there is an amazing outbreak of invective and abuse directed against Gen. Kitchener; there are remonstrances in Liberal journals and from pro-Boer platforms against the barren policy of burning farms and starving the burghers in the impoverished Dutch territory and Lord Salisbury is attacked for neglecting to inform France and other powers that the two republics have been annexed and that the Boers are no longer entitled to recognition as belligerents when they are merely rebels, guerrillas and bandits.

When so many games at cross-purposes are in progress it is impossible for the public to know what is going on. The only point on which there is general agreement is that the French government has maintained a correct attitude during the last week, and that the English people have no reason to complain of the reception of Mr. Kruger. Lord Salisbury has clearly acted with some intelligible motive in refraining from changing the status of the Boers from belligerents to rebels.

PLAN TO CRUSH BOERS.

Non-Combatants and Prisoners to be Sent to the Coast.

London, Nov. 27.—Details of Kitchener's plan of operations against the Boers are cabled by the Daily Mail's Pietermaritzburg correspondent, who says the new colonies are to be divided into circumscribed areas and a mobile force apportioned to each, with infantry, to keep open lines of communication. Ox wagons are to be dispensed with and only light cape carts employed to carry ammunition. All Boers and neutrals captured are to be taken to the coast and kept there until the country is cleared. The work is expected to be long and arduous, lasting possibly for years, and certainly for months. The report that Lord Roberts has asked for 20,000 more regulars to relieve the volunteers and the yeomanry is believed to be quite probable.

COMPLETELY DISPERSED.

Delarey Opposes Clements' March and Meets with Disaster.

London, Nov. 27.—Lord Roberts, cabling from Johannesburg under date of November 26, reports a number of encounters with the Boers at widely-separated points, in which the British captured some cattle and a few prisoners and suffered slight casualties. The most serious affair was an engagement with the forces of Gen. Delarey, numbering about 4000 men, with three guns who opposed Gen. Clements' march towards Rietfontein. The Boers, the dispatch says, were completely dispersed.

RELATIVES CUT OFF.

Playwright Hoyt's Will Offered for Probate in New York.

New York, Nov. 27.—The will of Charles H. Hoyt, the playwright, was filed yesterday in the surrogate's office. It was executed October 15, 1898. After making bequests to personal friends and employes the testator says:

"It is my wish that the theatrical business of Hoyt & McKee be continued and conducted solely by Frank McKee, as it is now managed, the said Frank McKee to receive all of my share of the profits thereof as a recompense for his services, excepting such portion as is hereinbefore bequeathed to Elwood M. Dasher. On the death of said Frank McKee the said business shall cease."

Residuary legatees are the Lambs' club of this city and the Actors' fund.

"In making this will at the present time," the will concludes, "I have no relatives nearer than cousins to be considered by me, and my cousins and distant relatives have never shown by any act any desire for my friendship or good will; hence I have deemed it more consistent with fair dealing and justice to dispose of my property to those who during my life have been my constant companions and well-wishers, and to such charities as in my judgment are most fitting."

Sara and Her Figure.

It has been said that the woman of brains is usually proud of her beauty, and that the pretty woman is vain of her intellect. But listen to this: Sara Bernhardt went to see Mrs. Carter play "Zaza." The great Sara watched the actress with keen and critical eyes. Then she turned to a friend who was sitting beside her. "That woman," said Sara, "has greater talent than I have, but," she added, with emphasis, "she is not my equal in looks, and mine is the better figure of the two."

Seven dollars a month, with room and board, seems to be the highest sum ever paid to a waiter girl in German hotels and restaurants.

MAD RUSH OF WATERS.

Monongahela and Allegheny Rivers Flooded.

FAMILIES HOMELESS.

Several Lives Lost and Many People Thrown Temporarily Out of Employment.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 27.—After three days of incessant rain a flood unprecedented for this season of the year and quite unexpected in its fury swept down the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers last night. In their mad rush the waters ruined hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property, caused the loss of at least three lives, temporarily threw out of employment thousands of workmen by the forced suspension of the many industrial establishments lining the banks of both streams and rendered hundreds of families homeless.

The fatalities are:

FREDERICK KOPPMAN, aged 68 years, tripped and fell, breaking his neck, while removing goods from his home.

JOSEPH DAVIS.

JOSEPH FLOCKER, mill-workers, drowned by the capsizing of a skiff in the Allegheny.

The lowlands in Pittsburg, Allegheny, Sharpsburg and McKeesport are inundated, and nearly every plant fronting the two rivers have been forced to shut down. Hundreds of families in these districts have either been driven from their homes or are living in the upper floors and using skiffs. There were many narrow escapes from drowning during the night and several men are reported to the police as missing, but the only known fatalities directly traceable to the flood were those of Koppman, Flocker and Davis.

Davis and Flocker, with three companions, attempted to row across the Allegheny in a skiff, which became unmanageable and collided with a coal boat. The men were thrown into the river and Davis and Flocker drowned. The others clung to the upturned boat and were rescued after being carried two miles down the river.

At Neville island the four-span railroad bridge in course of construction was swept away during the night. It was being erected for the American Steel and Wire company and was also to be used for passenger traffic by the Pittsburg & Lake Erie Railroad company.

It is reported that a shanty boat with three traders, whose names are unknown, broke from its moorings near Millvale, Pa., about daybreak and sank in the Allegheny river with all on board.

Ohio River Rising.

Parsons, W. Va., Nov. 27.—High water has done thousands of dollars of damage in this county during the past thirty-six hours. Water put out the fires in the courthouse basement and surrounded the schoolhouse, compelling adjournment of court and school.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Nov. 27.—Today opened clear after a week's steady storm of rain and snow. The Ohio river is rising rapidly and reached a stage of 15 feet 8 inches at 8 a. m. today. The stage of the Little Kanawha at Creston and Grantsville was 15 feet, but no fears are entertained thus far of a flood.

Alleged Disaster Denied.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 27.—During last evening a rumor of a railway disaster in West Virginia in which 200 persons were said to have perished, spread through the country, but advices this morning indicate that the train is safe. A landslide near Hinton, W. Va., covered the track with earth, and the report was that a Chesapeake & Ohio train had struck it and been hurled into the Greenbrier river. Wires were gone and it was hours before direct news could be obtained. Officials of the railway at 1 a. m. said they had dispatches showing the train had stopped in time and was delayed by the landslide.

EX-POLICE CHIEF OF ASHLAND ROBBED

Albert Prothero, Held Up in Chicago, Catches Thief and Nearly Kills Him.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Albert Prothero, an ex-chief of police from Ashland, Wis., yesterday dozed off for a moment in a saloon at Halsted and Lake streets. Two men promptly took possession of his watch and $5 and ran for the street. The man from Wisconsin pursued the fugitives out on the Halsted street viaduct and there in the shadows laid an earnest hand upon Philip O'Hearne and would have killed him had not Policeman P. J. Mulvihill interfered. The prisoner was patched together at the hospital and locked in a cell.

BECOMING ACUTE.

Relations Between United States and Turkey--Norton Still Denied an Exequatur.

Constantinople, Nov. 27.—The relations between the United States government and the Porte are becoming acute. Mr. Griscom, the American charge d'affaires, went to the yildiz palace Sunday and had an interview with Tewfik Pasha, minister of foreign affairs, and Tahsin Bey, first secretary at the palace. The interview, however, was barren of result.

While the Porte outwardly persists in the attitude it has assumed regarding the question of granting an exequatur to the United States consul at Harpoot, there is reason to believe that the dispatch of the battleship Kentucky to Smyrna has made a marked impression in official circles.

LODGE GOAT HURT HIM.

Iowa Woodman Sues Initiators for $10,700 Damages for Injuries.

Clinton, Ia., Nov. 27.—Members of the Modern Woodmen of America are awaiting with interest the outcome of a suit begun in this county, in which Joseph Burke of this city sues Michael Hines, Martin Doland and Charles W. Beeby for $10,700 for alleged personal injuries. Although Burke makes no mention of the Modern Woodman lodge, it is known that he was injured while being initiated into the camp at Charlotte, this state, in December, 1898. The defendants were members of the degree staff of the camp, and it is said they put the plaintiff through the "royal bumper degree" with a vengeance. The plaintiff alleges that he was injured "by being struck, bruised and thrown on the floor" and that the injuries received are permanent. It is said that the Woodmen have side degrees for the pleasure of the members and that it was during the working of one of these degrees that the plaintiff was injured.

Drowned in Munising Bay.

Munising, Mich., Nov. 27.—William Lemm, who was drowned in Munising bay Saturday night, had lived on Grand island fifty-three years and was known by nearly every vesselman on the great lakes. He was about to go to Detroit to live with his only child, Mrs. Cora Foy.

NO HOPE FOR DAVIS.

The Senator is Still Alive, but it is Unlikely that He will Survive the Day.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 27.—United States Senator Davis was still alive this morning, but it was the belief by his attendants that he would scarcely survive the day. He is much weaker and slowly sinking. Until yesterday the family kept up bravely, continuing to hope almost against conviction that the senator might yet be restored to renewed health and strength. The delirium has been so violent, however, that it scarcely seemed as if the senator's weakened frame could endure for long the terrific strain to which it was subjected by his disease-disordered brain.

There are few callers at the house. Those in attendance on the sick man differ materially as to the termination, one of the physicians having said that he might depart within twenty-four hours, while others declare the senator may hold out for another week. Mrs. Davis attempted to reach Bishop Whipple by telephone, but he had gone South, and Dr. Theodore Sedgwick and Archdeacon Appleby of the Episcopal church were called in to offer prayers at the dying statesman's bedside.

At 10 o'clock Dr. Stone issued the following bulletin:

"Senator Davis has failed rapidly since 1 o'clock this morning. Respiration 16, pulse 140 to 146, temperature 101 2-5."

At noon the physicians stated that Senator Davis was still living but extremely weak.

MR. WILSON DEAD.

Best Informed Man on Revenue Subjects in Government Service.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—George W. Wilson, commissioner of internal revenue, died this forenoon in his apartments at the Riggs house, of Bright's disease, complicated with asthma. He had been dangerously ill for several days past. There were with him at the time of his death Mrs. Wilson, his daughter, Mrs. Pardonner, and several of his associates of the treasury department.

George Washington Wilson was 57 years of age and a native of Ohio. He entered the Union army when 18 years old as a private in the Fifty-fourth Ohio volunteer infantry and served throughout the war, coming out a first lieutenant. In 1866 he took up the practice of law and in 1869 entered the internal revenue service. He served in various capacities, rising from one important position to another until he became the head of the bureau. Mr. Wilson was regarded as the most thoroughly informed man on internal revenue subjects who ever entered the government service and was consulted on all measures affecting the revenues that have been before Congress for many years.

The funeral will be at Hamilton, O., on Thanksgiving day. The party, including Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Pardonner and Chief Deputy Williams, will leave here tomorrow over the Chesapeake & Ohio at 3 p. m., going via Cincinnati to Hamilton, where the interment will take place.

Editor Dorr Dead.

New York, Nov. 27.—Robert E. A. Dorr, president of the Mail and Express company and publisher of that paper, died at his home in this city today. Death was due to a complication of diseases. Mr. Dorr had been in ill-health for about six months.

He leaves a wife and son and daughter. There will be no change in the management of the Mail and Express company.

David R. Leeper Dead.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 27.—David R. Leeper, ex-mayor of this city, and former member of the Indiana Legislature, died here today, aged 70. For many years he was a leading Democratic politician.

DAVID WHITNEY DYING.

Millionaire Lumberman of Detroit Can Live but a Few Days at Most.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 27.—The illness of David Whitney, Jr., the millionaire lumberman of this city, has taken such a serious turn that his death is expected at any moment. He has been suffering from heart trouble and recently kidney trouble showed itself. His daughter, Mrs. Gray Whitney Hoff, who resides in Paris, is now on the ocean on her way home. She is expected Saturday or Sunday, but it is not believed Mr. Whitney will live that long. Mr. Whitney is one of the wealthiest men in Detroit. He is 70 years old.

DISTRESS AT LIVADIA.

Suffering of the Czarina is Greatly Complicated.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 24 (via Paris, Nov. 27.—Prof. Schereschevski, the surgeon of the imperial family and a famous specialist on nerve diseases, has arrived at Livadia. The Empress Dowager will leave Copenhagen on November 29 and it is announced that she will arrive at Livadia on December 10. Although the daily bulletins from official circles are reassuring, the court is troubled and anxious.

No bulletins are allowed to be published concerning the really pitiable state in which it is believed the Czarina also now is. Her suffering is greatly complicated by her delicate condition. The imperial children are all in good health, and no alarm is expressed concerning them. Count Lamsdorff, the foreign minister, is busy daily replying to the inquiries wired from various European courts about both the Czar and the Czarina.

Livadia, European Russia, Nov. 27.—The improvement in the Czar's condition continues, judging from the following bulletin issued today:

"The Czar passed a good day yesterday. At 9 in the evening his temperature was 97.9; pulse, 66. During the night his majesty slept well. This morning the Emperor's condition and general strength were perfectly satisfactory; temperature, 96.8; pulse, 66."

ARRESTED ON SUSPICION.

Two Men with Stolen Canadian Money in Their Possession.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 27.—James M. Simpson of Montreal and Louis Matheis of Rochester, N. Y., were arrested here last night on suspicion, and the police in searching them found in their possession $300 in Canadian $10 notes that did not appear to be valid. Today it was ascertained that the notes are part of a $10,000 issue of the Dominion Bank of Toronto, which was stolen from the bank branch at Napanee, when it was so sensationally robbed a number of months ago. The notes which were stolen were signed, but not countersigned. The prisoners claim to have come by the money honestly.

WHISKY CURE PROVES FATAL.

Acid in Lemon Extract Used as Substitute by Iowa Man Causes Death.

Ottumwa, Ia., Nov. 27.—The means adopted by Rodney McFee, a painter and carriage trimmer at Lacona, to overcome the liquor habit was the cause of his death. To cure his craving for intoxicants he used lemon extract as a beverage in lieu of whisky. He died in great agony last Saturday evening as a result of acid poisoning. He leaves a wife and two children.

FRENCH MAY INTERFERE.

Proposition to Arbitrate Transvaal Disputes.

IN MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

Gen. Cronje, Now at St. Helena, to be Presented with a Sword of Honor.

Paris, Nov. 27.—The officials of the municipal council of Paris and of the general council of the Seine were received at 10 a. m. by Mr. Kruger, in the Hotel Scribe. The interview was private and brief. Immediately after the visitors had departed Mr. Kruger drove to the Hotel de Ville. He received an ovation from a large crowd massed in the square in front of the edifice. Mr. Kruger was conducted to the meeting hall, where he was given the arm chair reserved for representatives of governments. The municipal councilors and the people in the galleries loudly cheered the distinguished visitor. Vice-President Escudier delivered an eloquent address, saying Paris had given Mr. Kruger a welcome worthy of his noble character and the grandeur of his cause. He also said: "You have heard the heart of Paris beat. It is the heart of France. Let the people speak and speak loudly, and arbitration will impose itself, as a necessary satisfaction to justice and civilization."

The president of the general council spoke in a similar strain.

Mr. Kruger replied in energetic tones, thanking the speakers for the sentiments expressed. He said he was deeply grateful for the welcome which was a continuation of and a crowning of that France already given him. Since he landed, the former President added, he had been on a rising wave of acclamation. He was very thankful for what had been done and for what they wished to do for him and his people, who were still struggling and were not yet defeated. Their resistance continues and will still continue. They will ever struggle for independence, liberty and justice. Continuing, Mr. Kruger said: "Ah! Why cannot they hear your acclamations? It would redouble their courage."

Mr. Kruger also said he hoped they would yet know them, one day in the future, when they had recovered their independence. He regretted arbitration had been refused and he would never cease to demand it.

The president of the municipal council, tomorrow, will propose in the council a vote in favor of arbitrating the Transvaal disputes.

Henri Rochefort, accompanied by a deputation including Deputies Millevaye and Paulin-Mery, Senator Provost De Launay and MM. Coppe and Le Maitre, today presented Mr. Kruger with a sword of honor destined for Gen. Cronje, now a prisoner on the Island of St. Helena.

Portuguese After Dewet.

Lourenco Marques, Nov. 27.—A detachment of eighty mounted Portuguese troops, with two guns, crossed the river this morning to Catembo. It is reported that Gen. Dewet is in Portuguese territory and in that district.

PLOT TO KILL ROBERTS.

Conspirators Laid a Mine Which was to be Blown Up--Ten Italians Arrested.

London, Nov. 27.—According to a special edition of the Evening Standard today, a plot to assassinate Lord Roberts, in which two foreigners are concerned, has been discovered.

It appears that the conspirators laid a mine which was designed to be blown up Sunday while Lord Roberts was in church at Johannesburg, but the police and Lord Roberts' bodyguard frustrated the conspiracy. Ten men, mostly Italians, have been arrested. These details, the Evening Standard says, it has been unable to verify.

WITH GREAT POMP.

Funeral Services in London of the Late Sir Arthur S. Sullivan.

London, Nov. 27.—With all the pomp and circumstance which might have attended the obsequies of a member of the royal family, the remains of Sir Arthur S. Sullivan, who died here Thursday last, were interred in St. Paul's cathedral today.

At the preliminary services in the Chapel Royal, the Queen and Emperor William of Germany, the Prince of Wales and other royalties were represented, while the musical and dramatic world attended in large numbers. Joseph H. Choate, the United States ambassador, and other diplomats and numerous Americans, including the Countess of Essex and Mrs. Ronalds were also present. The coffin was imbedded in magnificent floral tributes sent from far and near in such numbers that they filled four hearses.

The preliminary service ended, the procession re-formed and proceeded to St. Paul's cathedral. During the long wait the band of the Scots guards played Chopin's and Beethoven's Dead marches, while from the organ pealed Mendelssohn's Tribute to the Dead.

On the broad steps of the cathedral, the dean and chapter of St. Paul's and the white-robed choristers, surrounded by thousands of spectators, met the procession. As the great doors flew open the sunlight streamed in and the voices of the choir, strong and sweet, broke the solemn silence which had prevailed up to that time throughout the cathedral. In a coffin, almost hidden beneath wreaths of flowers, the remains were borne up the aisle until they reached the chancel steps, directly beneath the dome. There a catafalque had been erected on the edge of a narrow opening which led to the crypt. Around the opening this inscription was worked in flowers: "His sun has gone down while it was yet day."

SIX STUDENTS DISMISSED.

President Kane of Wabash College Creates a Sensation.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 27.—President Kane of Wabash college, the institution of learning located at Crawfordsville, learned Saturday night that some of the students were out on a "lark," and he left his home and followed them at a distance in their perambulations about the city. They first took a wine supper at a restaurant and then went to a resort where they engaged in a dance while one of their number played the piano. Though the carousal was kept up till a late hour, President Kane determined to see it out, and, unknown to the students, kept within seeing distance of everything they did.

After chapel services this morning the six students, three of whom are seniors, were invited into the president's office and dismissed from the institution. When the surprised students asked for the cause of such summary action they were informed of their movements on Saturday night, and when one of them questioned the truth of President Kane's information he was told that the president was an eye witness of all that had occurred.

DRIFTING ASHORE ON THE SANDS.

Heavily-Laden Schooner Dismasted and Helpless--Heavy Sea was Running.

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 26.—The patrolmen of the Wallis Sands Life Saving station today sighted a heavily laden schooner dismasted and helpless, drifting ashore on the sands. A high gale prevailed and a heavy sea was running. The schooner was a two-master and looked to be a lumber carrier, but her name could not be made out. There was no sign of life on board and it was thought by those on shore that the crew may have been swept overboard by the furious seas. The deckload had been carried away. The life-savers prepared to go to the schooner as soon as she struck bottom.

The vessel struck about one hour after the lifesavers sighted her and began to go to pieces at once. The lifesavers went to the vessel, but found no one on board. The name on the stern board was "Advance." The lifesavers think she was a Britisher of about 140 tons.

STEAMER FOUNDERS.

Twenty-six Lives Are Lost by Shipwreck in Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Quebec, Que., Nov. 26.—Twenty-six persons, every soul on board the crack coast passenger steamer St. Olaf, perished during the storm, which drove the vessel upon the rocks on the dangerous north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and destroyed it.

At the scene of the wreck, which is opposite Seven islands, 300 miles below Quebec, the sweep of last night's gale was terrific. The gulf there is nearly fifty miles wide, and, while the hurricanes which rage there frequently have free play, the number of small islands that dot the gulf give poor sea room for buffeted ships. The disaster to the St. Olaf is only one of many that have taken place there in the last few years.

Capt. Lemaistre, in command of the steamer, and several of his officers and crew belonged to this city. The first dispatch from Seven islands brought but very meager news and it was only late in the afternoon that A. Frazer & Co., owners of the steamer, were informed of the extent of the disaster. Besides the nineteen men of the steamer's crew seven passengers had also perished.

The St. Olaf was an iron steamer of 305 tons and was built on the Clyde at Port Glasgow in 1882. She was valued at about $40,000 and insured for about $20,000. She left Sheldrake on Wednesday and shortly after this the signal station dispatches reported rough weather, with gales of wind and snow, and it is supposed that during one of these gales the St. Olaf ran ashore on one of the rocks at the entrance of the Seven islands, as the dispatch states that she was wrecked on Boule island.

Capt. Lemaistre was well and favorably known as a careful and skillful coast navigator and had been a resident of this city for some years.

The officers and crew of the St. Olaf were:

LEMAISTRE, P. T., captain.
CARON, LOUIS, first mate.
BOUDREAU, CHARLES, second mate.
VEIT, F. T., purser.
REMBLAY, JOSEPH T., steward.
ROY, JOSEPH, cook.
LAMARIE, ART, seaman.
GAUTHIER, JOSEPH, seaman.
DOYLE, SAM, seaman.
BLAINEY, WILLIAM, seaman.
VIGNEAULT, AMEDEE, lamp trimmer.
ARSENEAU, JOSEPH, cabin boy.
LAFLEUR, GUS, messroom boy.
BELANGER, EUGENE, chief engineer.
BRUNELL, JAMES, second engineer.
BELANGER, WILFRED, third engineer.
CORMIER, ODILON, fireman.
GAGNE, JOHN, fireman.
DOYLE, THOMAS, fireman.
GAGNEN, LOUIS, of Pentecost, passenger.
BACON, JOSEPH, Sheldrake, passenger.
BOND, CLARENCE, Sheldrake, passenger.
CHINIC, JEREMIE, Sheldrake, passenger.
MAHAR, MICHAEL, Sheldrake, passenger.
BEAUDIN, NAPOLEON, St. John's river, passenger.
PAGE, MISS MARIE, Thunder river, passenger.

As soon as the news of the wreck reached Seven islands a searching party went out to attempt to rescue any of the shipwrecked people if possible, but this was impossible, as everyone aboard the vessel seems to have been lost.

A THRIFTY PREMIER.

British Prime Minister Fixes Himself and Kinsmen in High-Salaried Positions.

London, Nov. 26.—Lord Salisbury has smashed the record for nepotism to smithereens. Not only has he favored himself with a paying office (as prime minister he receives no salary), but he has secured comfortable and lucrative berths for no less than five of his near relatives.

When he held the office of prime minister and secretary of state for foreign affairs Lord Salisbury received a salary of $25,000 a year. He will get the same pay now as keeper of the privy seal, although the work will be much lighter. His nephew, Arthur J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury, will draw a similar amount; his son-in-law, Lord Selborne, first lord of the admiralty, gets a fine house, rent free, and $22,500 besides; another nephew, Gerald Balfour, president of the board of trade, will cash government vouchers for $10,000; his relative by marriage J. W. Lowther, who is to be reappointed deputy speaker and chairman of ways and means, will have a stipend of $12,500.

The premier's son, Lord Cranborne, under secretary of state for foreign affairs, gets the poorest job of the lot and the smallest pay. He will have to do a lot of work and be paid only $7500. Thus the total amount received by the Salisbury connections from the British government will be over $100,000 a year—more than the joint salaries of President McKinley and his entire cabinet.

PERSONA NON GRATA.

Why Turkish Porte Refused Dr. Norton an Exequatur--Unfriendly to the Turks.

New York, Nov. 26.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt, says a Herald dispatch from Berlin, states that the reason why the Porte refused an exequatur to the newly-appointed United States consul at Harpoot is because when a missionary he showed himself unfriendly to the Turks and spread untrue stories about massacres. The consul will, however, in spite of the decision of the Porte, leave for Harpoot to take up his new duties.

As the American battleship Kentucky is on her way to Smyrna it is extremely probable that the Porte will give way.

A Washington dispatch to the Herald says Mr. Griscom, the charge d'affaires in Constantinople, will urge the sublime Porte to issue an exequatur in order that Dr. Thomas H. Norton may enter upon his duties as consul at Harpoot as promptly as possible.

FASHIONS IN ST. PETERSBURG.

Short Skirts, Black Shoes and Gloves Without Fingers.

From St. Petersburg a correspondent writes: Although Paris is enjoying a late summer and the garb of the moment consists of diaphanous robes of delicate colors, trimmed with lace, here the talk is all of winter overcoats and galoshes. The only novelty is the short skirt, "a la bicycliste," but even that was worn in Paris as long ago as last spring. It is, however, none the less welcome, since what could be more inconvenient and fatal to the elegance of a well-dressed woman than to be compelled to sustain the weight of long and heavy skirts during the muddy season which we are now experiencing? These skirts are worn plain, without any attempt at adornment. We have said goodby to white and even brown boots, and now wear only black chaussures, cut high, and with buttons. The favorite mode of hairdressing is the coiffure "Rejane," the details of which are sufficiently well known. A considerable change has been made in the matter of gloves. These are now worn without fingers, but beautifully embroidered on the backs, adorned with precious stones, and fastened with elaborate buttons. They are, of course, very expensive, and it is also necessary to wear with them several handsome rings.—London Telegraph.

Stolen Money Returned.

Nearly thirty years ago Jonas Silverman, a farmer living near Springfield, O., was swindled out of $1500 by sharpers while on a train near Valparaiso, Ind. The criminals escaped and ere long one of the three died. The other two drifted to the Klondike a year or two ago, became rich and have just returned to the states. They hunted up Mr. Silverman, paid him the $1500 and gave him $1000 more by way of interest on the forced loan.

'Twixt Life and Death

"You don't know how dull it is here," she pleaded.

"Yes, I do. I know that this house must be terribly dull in comparison with the glitter and movement of the scenes you have lived in—that the life here must be terribly monotonous after an existence of perpetual change and variety."

"And then I am only a girl, with no serious object in life—"

"If you were a man with the most serious purpose a man can have—the determination to subdue inclination and renounce the dearest desire of his heart—the result would have been the same. If a quiet life had been the cause of your unhappiness, you should have found happiness in this last change. But are you happy?" She kept her head down, making no sign. "No; you have not found even satisfaction. We cannot buy happiness—we can only buy pleasures, and they are scarcely better than the narcotics that for a little while make us forget, and like narcotics, these pleasures must be taken by those whose happiness depends upon them in stronger and stronger doses till the end comes. Look at Goldy in the cage there. If external conditions count for anything, he should have died of misery the day after he was taken from the fields. But he lives and sings there in a prison."

"And why can't I?"

"The case is different. That little prisoner has all the food he needs, but our craving hearts wish for the nourishment that is denied us. It seems to me that we need nothing here but love. I think I could live content with all this small room holds."

"You are a man," Nessa said, still striving to hold her ground.

"And for that reason, I am less easy to satisfy than you who are a woman. There's not the difference between us that you imagine. Look up in my face. Do you see no change—no trace of past suffering?"

She looked up quickly, and with tender sympathy overcoming her silence, said: "Have you been ill?"

"Not more than you, who tell me you are well. But I have suffered as you have. Dear, you know the cause. I love you and all my happiness depends upon your loving me." Her head had sunk again. He waited a moment, and then continued:

"I know your suffering and mine spring from the same cause, but whether you love me or another I dare not say. I have only my hope to guide me. Give me a sign that I may know." He loosened her hands; they slid down into her lap heavily.

"A word—a sign—to tell me that you love me or love me not," he urged passionately.

She thought of Grace and started to her feet, white and trembling violently. She could not stay there, feeling herself unequal to this conflict.

"You must not leave me thus," he cried, taking her by the arm, as she made a quick, terrified step toward the door. "For heaven's sake, put me out of this suspense! Oh, you do love me, darling!"

For a moment she stood irresolute, swayed between principle and passion, and then, her fervent love throwing all conscientious scruples to the wind, she flung her arms about his neck and sank, with a cry of joy, upon his breast.

He kissed her cold cheek till the hot blood rose, murmuring incoherent words of passionate love. Then again the image of Grace rose before Nessa's eyes, freezing her heart with a sense of guilt and shame.

"No, no!" she cried, shrinking from his lips and freeing herself by a physical effort from his arms. "I am nothing. It is Grace you must love."

"It is you I love—you, who are all the world to me. And now that I know you love me no one on earth shall separate us."

She shook her head wildly and escaped from the room. He left the house almost immediately after. To tell Grace what had happened was the first duty that presented itself to his mind.

It was less easy for Nessa to determine the course she had to take. For a time it was impossible for her to compose her thoughts into any delicate form. She shook from head to foot as she sat upon the side of her bed endeavoring to overcome the convulsive agitation of mind and body. Little by little, as the physical and mental agitation subsided, certain convictions rose distinct and clear from the tumult of ideas that crowded her mind. First she saw the responsibility of her becoming Sweyn's wife. Her whole soul revolted against an act which seemed to her a deliberate crime against Grace. Next, she perceived the necessity of severing all communion with Sweyn. How could she evade him? She saw only one way of escaping temptation; she must fly. That, too, was obvious. She must leave the house and never return to it.

All that remained of her money, save a few shillings, she inclosed in an envelope with a few lines to Mrs. Blount expressing her regret for all the trouble she had given, and begging her to accept the sum in payment of her board and lodging; then she took a last look round the room, ran noiselessly down the stairs, and left the house unobserved.

About the same time, from her lodgings in Marble Grove, Fulham, Mrs. Redmond set out for the restaurant in Regent street, where she was to meet and lunch with Lord Carickbairn. It struck one as she reached the Chandos. She could be punctual when it suited her. At the door she was met by a man in a clerical hat and frock coat.

"You, alone?" she said in surprise, giving her hand, and on his nodding gloomily, she asked, "Are they upstairs?"

"I don't know whether she is. I haven't been up to see. I've been looking out for you. Come up the street; got something to say."

They walked toward the Circus briskly and in silence for twenty yards; then Mrs. Redmond spoke, "Where's Carickbairn?"

"At home in a strait waistcoat," he replied, in a low tone of discontent.

"What?"

"Attack came on in the night. I thought it would. Didn't you see how queer he looked at supper?"

"I noticed you kept your eye on him, and were precious particular about the knives."

"I can generally tell within a few hours when he's going to be bad."

"Oh, well, you can tell her that he's sprained his ankle, or something. She won't mind. She's not ready for it yet, and it's no good frightening her by being in a hurry; she might suspect. It will be time enough when her money runs out and she feels the want of it. I suppose he'll be all right to-morrow or the day after, and a day or two won't make much difference to us."

"Won't it, though!" said he, sullenly. "The governor's coming back."

"What?"

"Hexham will be back this afternoon, I found a telegram from him when I got in last night. He started from Dublin yesterday evening."

Mrs. Redmond muttered an imprecation between her set teeth, and after a pause asked, in a tone of dismay, "What are we to do now?"

"Nothing: the game's up! You may lay your life Hexham won't give us a chance."

"Why not? Couldn't he stand in with us? If we all three go equal shares in the money we shan't do badly."

The man laughed at her.

"You don't know what you're talking about," he said. "Why, Hexham's as honest as the day. He'd never have been trusted to take care of Carickbairn otherwise. If he chose to be dishonest he could bolt safely with more than you could offer him for putting his hand to such a dangerous job as this. He'd break every bone in my body if I hinted such a thing to him."

"Well, something must be done," she said in desperation.

"Then you'll have to look sharp about it; he'll be in London by five."

"Where is Carickbairn now?" she asked, after a long pause.

"In his rooms. I left him strapped down."

"Look here!" said she, taking his arm, and speaking low. "I'll undertake to bring the girl into the room in a couple of hours if you'll shut 'em in together and—and leave a knife where he can get at her."

"Well, you are a Jezebel!" he muttered, glancing at her sidelong.

"Never mind what I am; will you do it? You get as much as I do; you made your own terms, and know what they were for. Will you do it?"

"What's the good? The paroxysm's over by this time. He'll be as helpless as a child when I get back."

"Everything's against us," she said, bitterly; then, exasperated by the man's silence, she cried: "Why don't you suggest something? You didn't leave him to see me for nothing, I know."

"Oh, I'm content to throw up the affair. It's too confounded risky. Hexham pays me well; and a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush."

"That's all very fine. I know you—you want to put all the responsibility on my shoulders; but you are just as loath as I am to throw up the chance of making a fortune in a day."

"Well, I thought there might be just a chance that you had brought the girl up to the scratch. As I tell you after this bout Carickbairn may be as easily led as a child. We've had everything ready for the last week. If we could only get the girl to consent to marry him we might put them in a train and pack them off to the continent before Hexham arrives."

Mrs. Redmond stopped suddenly, and, turning round, said:

"Let's go back to the restaurant and find her!"

CHAPTER XXV.

A glazed door with a gauze blind closed the entrance from the staircase to the private dining room of the Chandos Restaurant. Peeping over the top of the blind, Mrs. Redmond saw Nessa seated at a table. She turned, and by a sign bade her companion in the clerical dress look. The girl sat in an attitude of deep dejection, looking listlessly through the window at her side; the light falling on her face revealed an expression of apathy and weariness in it which encouraged their hopes.

"You leave her to me. Go and fetch Carickbairn, and bring enough money to pay their fare; I have none."

The man turned and went downstairs; Mrs. Redmond entered the dining room.

"What's the matter?" asked Mrs. Redmond; "you look more down on your luck than usual to-day."

"I wish we were in Brussels," said Nessa. "You were telling me yesterday that there you could get an engagement, while I cultivated my voice, you know—"

"So do I. It's a lovely little place. Music in the parks, lots of smartly dressed women and children, people sitting outside the cafes in the warm sunshine, lots of lovely old buildings with a market place in the middle full of flowers, peasants in great wooden shoes. Oh, it is quaint and lovely!" She clasped her hands and threw up her eyes, and a faint smile came in to Nessa's face with the odd picture this description presented to her imagination.

"It must be interesting," she said.

"Interesting. I should think it was! Why, it's a thing to make you forget every trouble you ever had. Couldn't we run over there?"

"I have no money left."

"Tut, tut! There, that's it. I haven't a couple of pounds in the world. It's all gone; and I can't tell you, I'm sure we've been as careful as we could; we have bought nothing that wasn't absolutely necessary to ladies in our position. Do you really mean you have nothing left?"

"Yes. I don't think I've more than enough to pay for our lunch."

"Is it possible? Why, what are we to do for subsistence? I positively dare not run into debt again. Do you think you could borrow anything from your friends?"

Nessa shook her head. It was almost a satisfaction to her to think that there was no alternative left; Mrs. Redmond could scarcely conceal her exultation.

"Well, one thing is very certain," she said; "I must not think of brighter skies. I must accept that engagement and go drabbling about the provinces with that wretched music hall company. You wouldn't care for that sort of thing, would you?"

Nessa shook her head as she drew together the crumbs on the tablecloth.

"Of course you must do something for yourself if your friends won't help you; but luckily for you you're not bound to accept such a degrading position as mine. You've only got to say the word and you can get all that money can buy—carriages, horses, dress, diamonds everything. Ah," with a shake of her head, "fancy! in a couple of hours you could be dashing down to Queensborough in a saloon carriage, get on board one of those lovely boats, with the sea sparkling around you and the soft breeze blowing all the gloom out of your mind, steam up that beautiful river to Flushing, and to-morrow morning be lounging under an awning on one of those delicious Rhine boats passing through the most gorgeous scenery in the world, with some new object of interest at every turn to give delight to life. There, dear, it's impossible to think of any unpleasantness under such conditions, and everything about you seems perfectly charming." Mrs. Redmond continued to dilate upon the delights of continental travel until her imagination and recollections were exhausted, encouraged to the utmost by the evident interest with which Nessa listened. At length, fatigued by the effort and impatient of Nessa's silence, she said, in a tone of irritation:

"I can't tell what you're about to refuse such a chance. I suppose you've got some boyish romantic attachment." She waited for a response, but Nessa made none. "I thought so," she said, with growing vexation at the failure of her eloquence; "you've been awfully close about your friends; but I can see well enough what's the matter. You're smitten with some fellow whom you hope to catch."

Nessa shook her head.

"Well, you expect to find some one better than Carickbairn—a duke perhaps."

Nessa shook her head once more without a sign of resenting Mrs. Redmond's sarcasm.

"Then I can't understand why you hesitate. I should have thought you had had enough of misery."

"It may be that is why I do hesitate. If I could only love Carickbairn—"

"I don't see why you shouldn't love him; he can give you everything that women of our class marry for. You talk about love as if you were still a child at school. It's just these matches that result from such silly sentiment that turn out bad. I never knew any couple yet who married for love who didn't detest each other before a year was ended. Can't you use your eyes? Look down in the street there; can you pick out a single well-dressed woman who looks as if she were in love? Not one; they have all found that the real enjoyment of life comes from dress and position and all that. Love is an amusement—it lasts, at the outside, for a year or so; but wealth brings enjoyment for a whole lifetime. What would become of us after forty if we had nothing but love to live upon?"

"Oh, we must love as long as we live; it is part of our life," said Nessa, fervently. "Do not old people weep when death parts them from those they love?"

"That's affection; and it's precisely that affection which springs up after marriage when two people have married sensibly, and not married from inclination."

As Nessa seemed to accept this proposition, Mrs. Redmond continued:

"A woman must come to love a man who is always providing her with what she wants."

The Magic of a Whistle.

I have heard his boyish whistle in the dark and dewey gloam
As he trudged across the meadows, as he drove the cattle home,
I have heard him trill a measure with
the cadence of a lark,
And his boyish reason for it is: "It
frightens off the dark."

Oft there seems a something lurking in the tall-grown plots of grass
And his blood runs cold at thinking it
may grab him should he pass,
But he knows fear cannot linger in a brain for very long
If two lips are pursed for whistling and
a heart is tuned to song.

Though the eerie shadows hover and the clouds shut out the stars,
Up the pasture path he whistles, whistles
taking down the bars,
And the tune he pipes would surely any
tired heart regale
When he times it to the splashing in the
frothed-o'er milking pail.

All the shadows, all the darkness grows
affrighted at the joy
And the happiness that bubbles from
the glad heart of a boy,
While Fear's pickets rout and scatter
'fore the hosts of Courage strong
If two lips are pursed for whistling and
a heart is tuned to song.

In my worldly walks of living, in my
struggle after pelf,
His philosophy of courage I have taken
to myself.
When the clouds of care and trouble veil
the blessed star of Hope,
And Misfortune waits to grab me as
along the path I grope,
When beset by fear I falter; see of light
no feeble spark,
Then his boyish plan I welcome "for to frighten off the dark."
And I reach my hopes' bright haven,
since one cannot wander wrong,
If two lips are pursed for whistling and
a heart is tuned to song.

Altogether Too Good.

Dearboy—I do not see what possible objection you can offer to me, Mr. Gimp.

Gimp—That's just it. I don't want a man in my family so infernally good that my wife and daughter will continually hold him up as an example to me.—Philadelphia North American.

MICHIGAN ITEMS.

—Muskegon celery-growers were hit hard by the cold wave. The loss on celery in the fields will reach $2000.

—The first deer which have been found in Mason county in two years were killed last week.

—Berrien county farmers endeavored to circumvent the Hessian fly this year by sowing their wheat late in October. When the snow came the wheat was just nicely up and a good crop is expected.

—A little boy of Wheatland, Hillsdale county, put three live mice into a glass fruit jar, and soon after the jar was missed. Three days later the family cat was found near the house with her head in the jar. She had gotten the cover off in some way, put her head in and eaten the mice, but so closely did the jar fit that it had to be broken before pussy's head could be released.

—Farmers in the vicinity of Royal Oak claim they were unable to obtain help to harvest the crop of tubers and that 3000 bushels still lie in the ground.

—Farmers around La Salle reaped a harvest out of beans, this fall, about 35,000 bushels being shipped to Eastern markets by two firms.

—Burglars entered the department store of Mack & Co. at Ann Arbor and carried off between $1500 and $2000 worth of the best silks and furs.

—Bay City architects are drawing plans for the new German-American cooperative sugar factory which is to be erected south of Salzburg, and the intention is to put the foundation in this fall so an early start on the superstructure can be made in the spring. The company will introduce a new feature in the handling of beets, inasmuch as it will not require farmers to pit them, but will do that work on the factory grounds.

—The silk thieves who have been operating for some months past in the western portion of the state have taken a long jump since their last scene of operation, and one night last week struck Sault Ste. Marie and carried off $650 worth of fine black silks from one of the stores there.

—The Cheboygan Tribune says that that city can boast of the youngest grandmother in the United States. The lady in question was born in 1871, was married before she was 12 years of age, and gave birth to a daughter when she was 13. The daughter followed the example of her mother and married young, and lately, when 16 years old, gave birth to a child.

COL. NOYES IS DEAD.

Well-Known Resident of Baraboo Passes Away—Father of Judge A. H. Noyes.

Baraboo, Wis., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Col. D. K. Noyes died this morning of stomach and other troubles. He was the father of A. H. Noyes, now district judge at Nome, Alaska.

Col. D. K. Noyes was born at Tunbridge, Vt., October 28, 1820. He came to Wisconsin September 17, 1844, and settled in Dodgeville. He enlisted for service in the Mexican war, but peace was declared before his company was called to the front.

COL. D. K. NOYES.

He then went to Beloit, entering the law firm of Noggle & Spaulding, and in 1847 he was admitted to the bar. The same year he went to Baraboo and together with his brother started the Baraboo Republic.

When the Civil war broke out in 1861 he was one of the first to respond to the call for volunteers. He was made first lieutenant in Co. A, Sixth Wisconsin. He participated in all of the engagements until Antietam, where he was wounded and the amputation of his foot became necessary. In November, 1865, he was discharged with the rank of lieutenant-colonel. He was twice elected to the state Legislature, was the first state treasury agent and in 1867 was appointed postmaster at Baraboo. He held the office for seventeen years. Col. Noyes was a member of the Masonic and Odd Fellows lodges, and a prominent worker in both, as well as an enthusiastic member of the G. A. R.

June 18, 1898, Col. Noyes and his wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, his marriage to Miss Lucretia Barnes having taken place in Chelsea, Vt., in 1848.

SHIPPED IN A TRUNK.

Game Warden Lucas of Fond du Lac Seizes Another Lot of Ducks.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Game Warden Lucas made another capture of ducks yesterday, confiscating forty-six mallards, which were carried in a trunk as baggage from Waynuwega to Oshkosh. Mr. Lucas was in Oshkosh during the day and at the Wisconsin Central depot stepped into the baggage car as the train from the north pulled in. One of the trunks in the car had a bunch of paper stuffed into a small hole near the lid. He pulled the paper out and with it came a bunch of feathers. The trunk was opened and forty-six mallard beauties were counted out. They were brought to Fond du Lac by the warden and sold to W. H. Coughlin.

BOTH HELD FOR TRIAL.

Man in Jail at Kaukauna is Murphy, the Notorious Safe Blower.

Kaukauna, Wis., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Thomas Murphy, alias E. J. Edwards, and Henry Lewis had an examination this morning. The evidence shows beyond a doubt that Edwards' real name is Murphy, and that he has done time in Joliet, Ill. His picture, both in prison garb and citizens' clothes, was shown and the letters found in his possession addressed to Thomas Murphy help to fasten this upon him. The man of whom he purchased the powder and fuse for the Kaukauna job, Peter Rothe of Green Bay, gave his evidence in court fastening this part of the job upon Murphy. Murphy and Lewis are both bound over to the circuit court under bond of $500 each. They will be confined in jail until the trial.

TRIED TO KILL HIS WIFE.

James Lowe of Neillsville, who is on Trial, Pleads Insanity.

Neillsville, Wis., Nov. 24.—The case of the state against James Lowe is on trial in the circuit court. The defendant, who was a butcher here for many years, is charged with having assaulted his wife, shot her twice and cut her throat with intent to murder her. The attempted homicide is admitted by the defense, but a plea of insanity has been interposed. The assault was made in June, 1899, and the special plea of insanity was tried last May, the jury disagreeing. The trial will probably occupy ten days.

MADISON FLANT DEFECTIVE.

FORTRESS IS CAPTURED.

Stronghold of Geronimo Destroyed by American Troops.

49 REBELS ARE KILLED.

Gen. Torres Reported to Have Been Captured by Gen. Grant—Americans Attacked by Bolomen.

Manila, Nov. 26.—The fortress of the insurgent chief, Geronimo, at Pinaurau, which the insurgents boasted was impregnable, was destroyed by a picked force of the Forty-second and Twenty-seventh Infantry and Troop G of the Fourth cavalry, under Col. Thompson.

Geronimo and most of the rebels escaped. The leader has long harassed the Twenty-seventh Infantry, operating in the vicinity of San Mateo, Montalban, and Novaliches. His position was considered the strongest in Luzon. It was a stone fortress surmounting a steep hill surrounded by canyons. The Spanish forces lost heavily in attempting to take it.

Col. Thompson mobilized a thousand men at Montalban. The attack was made upon four sides—the main body under Maj. Carey of the Forty-second advancing from the south, Capt. Atkinson of the Twenty-seventh from the east, Capt. Casteel of the Twenty-seventh from the west, and Capt. Sloan of the Twenty-seventh from the north.

The ascents were steep and the men climbed them by grasping the shrubbery. It was impossible for the eastern column to reach the summit, but the others arrived after three hours' climbing under fire from the fortress and the hillside entrenchments.

The enemy's force, numbering several hundred, fled before the attackers reached the top. The Americans destroyed a thousand insurgent uniforms, scores of buildings, and large quantities of supplies and seized a barrel full of documents.

Private Hart of the Twenty-seventh and Private Koppner of the Forty-second and two native scouts were killed and twelve of the attacking force were wounded. The insurgent casualties could not be ascertained.

Lieut. Frederick W. Alstaetter of the United States engineering corps, who was recently released by the insurgents, arrived in Manila this evening. He had been in captivity at Bubalto since August 1. Gen. Funston surrendered the rebel Maj. Van Tuse on the release of Lieut. Alstaetter.

It is unofficially reported that Gen. Torres, the insurgent commander at Bulacan, has been captured by Gen. Grant's scouts. Gen. Grant wired Gen. Wheaton that the entire garrison at San Jose had been captured, but Gen. Torres was not among them.

Particulars have been received from Iloilo of the battle, October 30, at Bugason, island of Panay, when 200 bolomen and fifty riflemen attacked the Americans, who lost three killed.

It appears that Corp. Burns was holed while reconnoitering and Lieut. Koontz and Sergt. Kitchen were pierced by spears while going to relieve an outpost.

When the garrison force attacked the rebels forty-nine of the latter were killed. None of the other parties of attacking natives made much of a stand and the insurgents lost 103 killed all told.

First Lieut. Albert E. McCabe of the Thirtieth Volunteer infantry has been appointed an inspector in the forestry bureau.

TART REPLY OF SHERIFF FREEMAN.

Will Not Allow Governor to Saddle Blame of Porter Lynching on Him.

Denver, Col. Nov. 26.—The Rocky Mountain News today prints the reply of Sheriff Freeman of Lincoln county to the letter of District Attorney McAllister of Colorado Springs, Col., concerning the prosecution of the persons who lynched Preston Porter at Limon, Col., recently. After telling of how he was influenced into taking Porter from Denver to Limon upon the assurance of leading citizens of Lincoln county that he would be allowed to pass through Limon unmolested to Hugo, where he would permitted to place Porter in the county jail, Sheriff Freeman declares that it would be impossible to get a jury in Lincoln or any adjoining county that would convict anyone charged with participation in the burning of Preston Porter. He concludes as follows:

"I do not justify the cremation, but I do object to having you and Gov. Thomas saddle the blame of this burning outrage on me and I will not involve Lincoln county in a needless and fruitless litigation against its own citizens."

This is a reversal of the action of the Philadelphia immigration officials, who had decided that the lacemakers should not be admitted to this country.

A Sure Cure for Croup.

The first indication of croup is hoarseness, and in a child subject to that disease it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is used in many thousands of homes in this broad land and never disappoints the anxious mothers. We have yet to learn of a single instance in which it has not proved effectual. No other preparation can show such a record—twenty-five years' constant use without a failure. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co.

Low Rates to the South.

Excursion tickets at reduced rates are now being sold by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway to the prominent resorts in the south, including Jacksonville, Fla., Mobile, Ala., New Orleans, La., Savannah, Ga., El Paso, Tex., which are good for return passage at any time prior to June 1st, 1901. ## A FATAL ACCIDENT.

LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY.

Steamer at the Pioneer Wood Pulp Company's Blows up with Terrific Force causing Great Damage.

On Tuesday one of the big boilers used to steam wood at the Pioneer Wood Pulp Company's mill blew up killing one man instantly and probably fatally injuring another and bruising two others.

The victims are Charles Pagel, killed instantly and Adolph Middlesteadt injured so badly that it is not known whether he will recover or not and Henry Podawiltz and Ferdinand Pagel bruised about the head and body by flying debris. Pogel was 59 years old and unmarried, and Middlesteadt is only nineteen.

Besides the loss of life the Pulp company has sustained a serious loss in the wrecking of one end of the mill and the side of the engine house, as well as the loss of the wrecked boiler.

The boiler that blew up was a big one about nine feet in diameter and about fourteen feet long. It was used to steam the wood in before it was made into pulp. It had been filled with wood about nine o'clock Tuesday morning and the steam turned on as customary. It was the custom to carry about forty pounds of steam on the tank when in use and the foreman stated that the steam gauge registered just forty pounds a few minutes before the explosion, which occurred about five minutes to twelve.

The force of the explosion was something terrific and in looking over the wreck it is hard to imagine how so much damage could be done to surrounding property. Chas. Pagel, the man killed, was passing by on the outside of the mill when the explosion came and he was lifted from the ground and hurled a distance of fifty feet, failing on the ice in the pond a lifeless and inanimate mass. His death was undoubtedly instantaneous as his skull was smashed and his brains oozed out and stained the ice where he lay.

Middlesteadt stood at one of the pulp machines in a direct line with the boiler that burst. When the end blew out of the steamer the huge boiler was blown ahead into the mill a distance of twenty-five feet, carrying everything before it and smashing huge timbers and beams like matches. The boiler struck a barker in its flight and demolished the machine, the pieces of casting being thrown about in a promiscuous manner. What it was that struck young Middlesteadt is not known, but he received a fearful blow on the side of the face that fractured his skull. It was claimed by some that the young man was able to make his way out of the mill alone while others say he had to be carried out. The latter is probably true, as it is not likely that he would be able to walk after sustaining the hurt he did.

Podawiltz and Pagel, the other two injured men were in the boiler room when the accident occurred. This boiler room is separated from the mill proper by a passage way about ten feet wide. When the explosion occurred the end of the boiler room was caved in and the roof torn off at the end, the whole end of the structure being wrecked and the bricks, boards, beams and wood from the steamer blown in as far as the steam boilers. When the explosion came the two men were knocked to the floor and partially covered by the flying debris, but neither was rendered insensible. The room was full of escaping steam and dust but they managed to get free from the wreckage and make their way to the partly jammed door and get out. Their injuries were not of a serious nature, being bruises about the body and head. To look at the boiler room after the explosion one could not help wondering how either of the men escaped with his life.

The head of the big steamer was blown bodily from the tank proper and landed on the ice of the pond only a few feet from where Mr. Pagel lay. It was not blown straight from the end of the tank, but apparently tore loose at one side and swung part way round and then went through the building with awful force. The wood from the tank was blown for hundreds of feet and scattered about the yard in a manner that impresses one strongly as to the force of the explosion.

While the wreck is a disastrous one spectators wondered that more people were not seriously injured and it was a mere matter of chance that so few people were in the path of the death dealing engine. Where the break occured in the tank the iron or steel is worn down quite thin either from the action of acid in the wood or the natural course of wear and tear on an affair of this kind and must have given way under any circumstances in a short time.

Justice Cooper impaneled a jury composed of G. W. Davis, H. Boetcher, Clark Lyon, Charles Briere, E. C. Ketchum and D. M. Huntington. These gentlemen viewed the remains on the day of the accident and after looking over the premises brought in a verdict the following day to the effect that the deceased had come to his death by the explosion of a defective steam tank in the mill of the Pioneer Wood Pulp Co. and that said steam tank was unfit for use.

In justice to the Pioneer company it is only right to state that the tank that blew up was inspected last summer and was considered to be absolutely safe both by the owners and the workmen at the pressure of forty pounds to the square inch. The other tank carries 60 pounds pressure as it is a smaller tank and capable of standing a greater strain.

A boiler maker who viewed the wreck the day after the accident stated that in his estimation the tank should have stood a pressure of forty pounds with ease and that he did not believe the tank had exploded at that pressure.

The loss to the Pulp company will be about $1,000, to replace the big tank alone necessitating an outlay of $600. The boiler house is also nearly a complete wreck.

BURNED WITH GASOLINE.

Painter at Court House has a Narrow Escape.

Theodore Laska, a painter who has been at work at the court house for some time met with a painful accident on Saturday, which resulted in some very bad burns.

Laska in company with a fellow workman was engaged in cleaning some paint from the stairs with gasoline. Laska doing the rubbing while his partner held a match so that he could see to do the work. The match burned out and the man lit a piece of waste and held it up for a light. This worked all right until a piece of the waste burned off and dropped to the floor, when Laska found himself enveloped in flames, which shot up his sleeves and burned his wrists, hands and arms in a horrible manner.

Dr. Pomainville dressed the man's wounds and it is probable that he will be laid up for a month although there will be no serious results from the burns.

WORK COMMENCED.

Northwestern Special Construction Train at Plainfield.

Stevens Point Journal: A special train of 25 cars of grading implements horses, mules, dummy cars, track, feed, tents and men passed through this city today. The train was delivered to the Central at Neenah and was taken through direct to Plainfield, passing through here at about 2:30 o'clock. The outfit is the property of the contractors who are to do the grading for the new Northwestern Princeton-Marshfield extension, and work is to be commenced right away. The new line will cross the Central's track near Bancoft and the work is to be commenced at that point and will be extended in both directions, toward Princeton, through Almond, and toward Marshfield through Grand Rapids. This is not the line which it is proposed to extend through this city except that the Stevens Point line will connect with it somewhere in the vicinity of Bancoft if it is decided to build it.

To License Barbers.

The bill providing that barbers be compelled to take an examination and secure a license the same as physicians and attorneys, which was defeated in the state senate at the last session of the legislature, will be brought up again at the coming session. The law if passed will require two years apprenticeship and an examination by a board of examiners to be created and will also contain sanitary regulations for shops. It has the endorsement of the Madison and Milwaukee barbers and an effort will be made to secure the passage of the bill by influential politicians.

BURNED TO DEATH.

SIGEL FARMERS HOUSE BURNS.

The Hired Man Caught in the Building and Creamated.—Origin of Fire Unknown.

On Wednesday morning the house belonging to James Rouhan who resides about four miles from this city in the town of Sigel, was burned to the ground and John Anderson, a man who was working for Rouhan was roasted to death in the flames.

So far as can be learned the fire started at about 3:30 o'clock Wednesday morning and when discovered by Mr. Rouhan had made such headway that nothing could be done to stop it, and he succeeded in saving only a part of his clothes so rapid did the flames spread.

Mr. Rouhan is a bachelor and his house was built in two sections about four feet apart and connected by a passage way and doors. It had been Mr. Rouhan's habit to keep a hired man that was married who occupied one part of the house and Mr. Rouhan the other, but the past summer Mr. Anderson has been with Mr. Rouhan, and he was also a single man.

On the morning in question Mr. Rouhan was awakened by some noise in the other part of the house where Mr. Anderson slept and arising from his bed he went to the door that connected the two buildings to find what was the trouble. Upon opening it the flames rushed out and into his face singeing his hair and whiskers, and so fierce was the fire that he could not get the door shut again. Finding it impossible to do anything Mr. Rouhan rushed to his bed and hastily gathering up the clothing he had doffed the evening before he rushed to the door, when he found that the other part of the building was entirely enveloped in flames.

Neighbors who saw the fire hurried to the scene but were unable to do anything as the buildings were a mass of ruins when they arrived.

The remains of Anderson were found in the opposite corner of the building to which the bed was situated which made it evident that the man had either been up when some accident set the building afire or else had been awakened by the fire but was unable to find his way out. The origin of the fire is unknown and Mr. Rouhan cannot even surmise how it happened. Anderson was a single man about thirty-six years old.

An inquest was held on the body on Wednesday but no new facts were developed either as to how the fire originated or whether it was accidental or of incendiary origin. The body of the burned man was an unrecognizable mass of flesh, when taken from the ruins, both the arms and legs being burned from the trunk.

Lost his Bearings

Christ Nelson, who is employed as grader at Arpin, had a narrow escape from climbing the golden stair on Saturday evening. He was coming to this city that evening on a three-wheeled handcar commonly known as a velocipede and had got past Vesper and was on the home stretch when he met the north bound "cannon ball" on the Marshfield & Southeastern. For some unknown reason Mr. Nelson did not see the train coming until it was very close to him, in spite of the fact that the engine showed a bright headlight. As a consequence he rolled off from his velocipede in a very unceremonious manner just before the engine struck the machine.

When the train was stopped Mr. Nelson was found to be all right, but there were pieces of handcar of different sizes in all directions. The man was badly rattled and could not explain why he did not see the locomotive headlight.

After a Bull Moose.

Wausau Record: Peter J. Hansen and Henry and John Switzer, while hunting deer in the town of Harrison last Saturday, saw and shot a large moose bull, something very seldom seen in this vicinity. They traced the animal several miles by the blood that dropped from his wound but finally lost the trail. On Monday they again saw the animal and shot at him. This time he was badly wounded and bled very freely and the boys started on his trail, but could not overtake him. They followed the trail to Hogarty's, losing it there on Tuesday night. Mr. Hansen is positive the animal cannot live and if his remains are found in the woods will give the finder $25 for the head.

By means of a stick to the end of which was tied strips of cloth with a loop, Dillon manipulated the lever which opened the doors into the corridor from his cell. He then tore out a heavy piece of ventilator pipe in his cell with which he pried and pounded at the bars across the windows and had two of them bent aside when Sheriff Kanouse, who was sleeping in his office, was wakened by the noise and interrupted the proceedings.

Oshkosh, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—A suit of long standing came to trial today in the circuit court in which Justice J. E. Dodge of the Supreme court of the state was one of the plaintiffs. It is entitled J. E. Dodge and John Rogers against W. H. Miller. Suit was commenced in 1890 and has been pending until today, when it was brought to trial. It is said that the mayor has stated that he would be willing to acquiesce in the demands made providing this backing be given. To just what extent he will go, however, is not known as there is on the other hand a sentiment against the gambling and open-saloon policy. Those favoring such a policy claim that it will be resumed once more. The chief of police has stated that he stands ready to carry out any orders that the mayor may give, so that no friction is expected on that score.

GRANTS HIM A PARDON.

La Crosse Man Set Free by Gov. Scofield.

SENT UP FOR MURDER.

Charles Press, Convicted of Killing a Man for His Money, is Given His Liberty.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Gov. Scofield has pardoned Charles Press, serving a life sentence at Waupun for murder committed in this city. Press was released late yesterday afternoon.

The granting of the pardon brings back to mind one of the most mysterious crimes of the city's history. Nels White was murdered at about midnight, July 22, 1886, on the steps of a resort kept by Emma Bigelow. Three men had a few moments previous to the shooting tried to force their way into the back door of the place, but were unsuccessful. They came around from the back of the house just as White was going down the steps and shot him without warning, rifling his pockets and disappearing in the darkness.

White ran a saloon and early in the evening he displayed a roll of bills, amounting to about $100, to three men, of the trio Press was a party. He was said to have also uttered threats against White. The latter closed his saloon, while the trio was there, and hurried to the resort.

Press' conviction was purely on circumstantial evidence and after two trials. Judge Newman, afterwards Supreme judge, tried the case and set aside the first verdict on the grounds that there was insufficient evidence. Upon reaching the Supreme court he interceded with different governors in behalf of Press, but would never make a written application.

Attorney Hood, who was his attorney, and other prominent men here, have been untiring in their efforts to get him out and have at last succeeded. The grounds set forth are that the evidence was purely circumstancial and Press was not any nearer than two blocks at the time of the murder, according to the evidence. Kennedy and Williams, the other two men, escaped, and have never been heard from. Press was capturd in Kansas City by Detective Al Byrne, since dead, and Sheriff W. J. Scott, now superintendent of public property for the state of Wisconsin.

The undersigned special committee, to whom was referred the question of the liability of Wood county to pay certain items, charges contained in printers' bills for publication and printing of notices of partisan caucuses and calls for conventions, together with blank ballots and other papers and reports for use at such caucuses and conventions, would respectfully report that we have carefully considered the questions involved, and have examined chapter 391 of the laws of Wisconsin, enacted in the year 1899 relating thereto, and we are of the opinion that none of the expenses which may be incurred under the provisions of said chapter are a legal charge against the county.

ON THE DECREASE.

People of Wisconsin Are Not Drinking as Much Beer as They Used To.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—"Beer-drinking is on the decrease in Wisconsin." So said Henry Hagemeister of this city, treasurer of the Wisconsin Brewers' association. Mr. Hagemeister says the days of fortune-making in the brewing business have passed, and that large brewing establishments now fail to return a fair percentage on the money invested.

"For this condition the brewing firms are largely responsible," he said. "It is because of their practice of cutting one another. The decrease in beer sales is due mainly to the increased private consumption in homes and the more than corresponding decrease in saloon patronage."

Mr. Hagemeister explained that when men drink beer at home they usually drink merely what they want, and the total consumption in this way is comparatively small. In saloons, the social phase leads men to drink beyond the mere desires of their appetites, and the result to the brewer is easily deducted.

FARMERS URGED TO RAISE BEETS.

Menomonee Falls Sugar Company Promise to Pay Well for the Vegetable.

Menomonee Falls, Wis., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—A highly important and interesting meeting of farmers was held here Saturday afternoon. The meeting was called by the Wisconsin Sugar company and was for the purpose of bringing the farmers and company to some understanding and to again interest the farmers in sugar-beet growing. Over 100 farmers, representing ten different localities, were in attendance, many of whom had lost considerable on beets raised for the original company that failed and they were naturally very backward about going into beet raising for the new firm. Nearly all of the officers of the company were present. A. Gettelman was the first to address the meeting. He talked very frankly to the people, stating briefly the company's position. "We have the plant and the financial backing necessary to equip and successfully operate the factory," he said. "One thing only is lacking. We must have the sugar beets. Will you farmers raise them?" The company would like 4000 acres, but must have a guarantee of at least 2500 acres before they can begin work. The daily capacity of the present plant is about 350 tons. The season lasts 100 days. This would mean 35,000 tons, which is about the quantity of beets that can be raised on 2500 acres of land.

R. G. Wagner, president of the Wisconsin Sugar company, has closely investigated the beet-sugar question from all sides. He has traveled extensively through Michigan and other beet-raising states. Prof. Henry of the state experiment station was unable to attend the meeting, but he wrote very encouragingly to the promoters of the "pioneer sugar industry of Wisconsin."

The cost per acre for raising sugar beets is $30, the yield fifteen tons, average price $12 per ton, thus giving the farmer 100 per cent. on his investment. These estimates are very conservative, Mr. Wagner stated, and in most cases the returns would be greater. He also suggested that a committee of farmers, representing the different localities, be chosen to investigate the finances of the company and to hold in trust the $25,000 bond offered by the company to secure the farmers' crops.

J. B. Whittaker of Menomonee Falls suggested the following for the committee: Peter Wright, chairman, and Henry Tenneson of Menomonee; Michael Jonan, G. W. Everts, Granville; Albert L. Brown, Lewis Stark of Germantown; J. Stark, Mequon; R. Weaver, Lisbon; and by unanimous vote of the meeting they were declared elected.

The farmers are to be paid as follows, on the 1st and 15th of each month, for beets delivered the previous two weeks:

$4 per ton for 12 per cent. beets.
$4.25 per ton for 13 per cent. beets.
$4.50 per ton for 14 per cent. beets.
$4.75 per ton for 15 per cent. beets.
$5 per ton for 16 and over per cent. beets.

Beets testing under 12 per cent. are not profitable for sugar purposes, but will be taken at a slightly reduced figure.

DISCOVER A BIG CAVE.

Great Caverns Found in Hills Near St. Joseph's Ridge, La Crosse County.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Jacob Ritter of St. Joseph's Ridge, this county, reports the discovery of a mammoth cave in the hills near his home. Mr. Ritter and two other men have partly explored the cavern and find that it is larger than any in this part of the state. After entering the first opening from the outside one enters a chamber at least fourteen rods long and in the neighborhood of forty feet high, after which there is another of the same height and about two rods longer. Between them is a huge rock, under which it is necessary to crawl to get from one to the other. The party were in the cave two and a half hours and did not then find the end, for the oil in their lantern gave out and they returned to the opening for fear of getting lost. The only sight of life found was a solitary legbone of some animal. There were no signs of any mineral deposits or stalactites. The cavern will be more thoroughly explored.

He was crawling under a fence and in some way his gun was discharged, the shot nearly severing his head from his body. His companions brought the body back to the city. An inquest was held today and a verdict of accidental death was returned.

William Forkell in an address in the People's pulpit on "The Ethics of Early Closing." The address was a strong appeal for the closing of local retail stores at 6 o'clock and a midweek half holiday for the clerks, whom he characterized as "the livery horses of the commercial world." Mr. Forkell is deeply interested in the matter and will make a personal canvass among the merchants to secure the proposed benefits for the clerks.

Bad Dollars Placed in Circulation but the Workmanship is Very Crude.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Counterfeiters have operated successfully in Green Bay with spurious dollars. It has not been learned, as yet, to what extent they worked, but it is believed they operated on a small scale. Saloonkeepers were the victims in the several cases reported. Lead is the principal metal in the counterfeit and the imitation of the standard dollar is very crude. A local bank cashier who examined one of the coins said: "Any man who would accept one of these rude counterfeits deserves to be victimized." The matter will be reported by a local bank to the United States treasury for investigation.

ASKS FOR PARDON OF A MURDERER.

M. M. Fenner of Portage in Prison Eighteen Years for Crime Committed When a Boy.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Judge W. S. Stroud of Portage made an argument before the governor today for the pardon of M. M. Fenner, who has served eighteen years of a life sentence for murder, committed when he was a boy. Fenner is a mechanical genius. He has been a "trusty" in prison for years, and during his imprisonment invented a fountain pen. The governor took the case under advisement.

SWINDLED A FARMER.

Fred Kruthols, Living Near Waukesha, is Fleeced Out of Considerable Money.

Baraboo, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Fred Kruthols, who resides on a farm near Waukesha, Wis., was in Baraboo yesterday with a tale of woe. Some days ago a stranger appeared at his place and induced him to become an agent for a cheap make of watches. He was to pay the stranger but a nominal price for the watches when delivered and was made to believe that he could sell them to his friends in the neighborhood for a good profit. After some persuasion he was induced to sign a contract for some of the goods and this was placed in an envelope as if to be mailed to the place from which the goods were to be delivered. The stranger went away and left the letter. Mr. Kruthols supposing that the stranger had forgotten it. He opened the letter in a short time and what was his surprise but to find that he had signed an order for watches, chains and charms, the total sum amounting to about $6000. As stated in the order each chain was put in at $27 each and the same price for the watches and charms. He then realized that he had not signed the order as first shown to him but that another one had been substituted when the deal was being made. The next day two men appeared and these frightened Mr. Kruthols into believing that it was a penitentiary offense to open a letter as he had done and that unless the matter was made right that an arrest was sure to follow. After considerable discussion it was finally agreed that Mr. Kruthols take four of the chains, watches and charms at $5 each and that he give his note for $243. This was done and the men then disappeared.

After they had gone he read in the Evening Wisconsin about the same game being worked near Baraboo and came to this city to see if he could locate the swindlers.

He says the note is now at the express office at Waukesha and he realizes that it must be paid and regretted that his trip to Baraboo was a fool's errand, for he desires very much to find the present location of the swindlers.

JUDGE WYMAN WORSE.

Viroqua Jurist Wires His Friends from Buffalo that He is Failing Fast.

La Crosse Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Dispatches to Viroqua friends from Judge Wyman of this circuit, now at Buffalo in a sanitarium, state that there has been a sudden change for the worse. Some months ago several competent physicians said he had cancer of the stomach, but microscopic examination by experts afterward seemed to show that he suffered from some other disease. He has had judges from other circuits hold court here for some months. His condition of late seemed to be somewhat better. The latest dispatch says he is failing fast.

ACCORDING TO CHICAGO CODE.

Two Brothers Commit Daring Theft in La Crosse and Come to Grief.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—A. M. and J. I. Johnson, two brothers, have been sent to the county jail for three months for stealing a coat, Chicago fashion, from a saloon. A. M. entered and took the coat, then made a rush for the door; his brother barred the way of his pursuers until he was out of sight. Both were caught by local detectives. They have posed as beggars for some time past, holding up people on the streets.

DELAVAN FARMER KILLED.

Thrown Out of His Wagon Onto His Head.

Delavan, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Charles Fern, a tenant on the farm of William Blakely, Sr., four miles west of town, was killed in a runaway. He was starting to town with milk when his team became frightened and ran away. He was thrown out, striking on his head. He leaves a wife and three children.

Little Child Burned.

Sheboygan, Wis., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—A 2-year-old daughter of August Hanzen was severely burned about the neck, breast and limbs yesterday. It was standing near a coal stove when the flames suddenly shot out, enveloping the little one in flames and setting fire to its clothes.

WOMEN MUST SLEEP.

Avoid Nervous Prostration.

If you are dangerously sick what is the first duty of your physician? He quiets the nervous system, he deadens the pain, and you sleep well.

Friends ask, "what is the cause?" and the answer comes in pitying tones, nervous prostration. It came upon you so quietly in the beginning, that you were not alarmed, and when sleep deserted you night after night until your eyes fairly burned in the darkness, then you tossed in nervous agony praying for sleep.

MRS. A. HARTLEY.

You ought to have known that when you ceased to be regular in your courses, and you grew irritable without cause, that there was serious trouble somewhere.

You ought to know that indigestion, exhaustion, womb displacements, fainting, dizziness, headache, and backache send the nerves wild with affright, and you cannot sleep.

Mrs. Hartley, of 221 W. Congress St., Chicago, Ill., whose portrait we publish, suffered all these agonies, and was entirely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound: her case should be a warning to others, and her cure carry conviction to the minds of every suffering woman of the unfailing efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THE ROSE HAT.

IN GAY NEW YORK.

Scenes and Incidents of Everyday Life in the Paris of America.

"Box trotting" is more of a fad than ever at this year's horseshow. A well-known actress who witnessed the opening last night coined it "box trotting," and in half a day the phrase has stuck hard and fast to Madison Square garden. It is the usual round of devotion paid by well-known society men, who go from one box to another and in time cover their acquaintanceship list thoroughly. Perhaps the most picturesque exhibit of the show is the throng which moves slowly along the "clothes walk," which is another bit of horseshow slang. The crowd is so great that its progress is necessarily slow, but to the majority this is a satisfactory condition, for it gives opportunity to observe each box and its occupants. One cynical observer compared it to a holiday at a museum. The crowd moved along, lists in hand, comparing numbers and gazing at certain society people as though they were rare curiosities. This procession is cosmopolitan and picturesque—a feature of the week well worth studying.

New York has never been so crowded before except on the occasion of some great public celebration. All the hotels are filled to their capacity and the leading ones have turned away hundreds. Primarily the horseshow is responsible, but outside of that everybody with a dollar to spend is heading for the metropolis—buyers from every city, accompanied by their wives, and business men who are taking pleasure with their business. After the horseshow is over there will be more room, but from the manner which the country is pouring into the city the hotelmen believe that vacant rooms will be a scarcity for some time.

A number of well-known four-in-hand drivers will hold a meeting at horseshow time, to talk over a proposition to make a quick trip from New York to Atlantic City, in order to establish a record for a one-day run on a coach. The distance to Atlantic City is 155 miles, and it is proposed to use eighteen teams, which will be placed at relays along the route. Each one of the men who go into the scheme will drive for one stage, and some remarkably quick time will be made. The old public coach Good Times, which formerly was operated from the Waldorf-Astoria to Fordham, will be used. The longest one-day trip ever made on a coach in this country was on the old New York-Philadelphia public coach, which was operated daily from the Waldorf to the Stratford in Philadelphia, some five years ago. A number of the coaching men interested in that project will take part in the Atlantic City trip. The old coaching route between New York and the Quaker City will be used for a portion of the way.

A paper writing purporting to be the last will of Mary Kiernan, known as "Apple Mary" and as "One-Shoe Mary," of South Water street was filed in the surrogate's office. The alleged will describes the testatrix as "Mrs. Levi P. Morton, otherwise known as Miss Mary Kiernan." It was signed "Mrs. Levi P. Morton." A petition made by Mrs. Celia Fosket, asking that the paper writing be admitted to probate as the last will of Mrs. Levi P. Morton, otherwise Mary Kiernan, gave the value of the personal estate left by the decedent as $12,000. The value of the real estate was said to be unknown.

One of the most beautiful debutantes in the ranks of the 400 recently eloped with a clubman some thirty years her elder. The romance began last summer at Newport, where the clubman goes each summer and where the girl's people have a magnificent villa. On her twenty-first birthday the young woman would be possessed of $250,000 in her own right. Last week the debutante had a family tiff with her mother. That evening the mother found a short note on her daughter's pin cushion. It read: "I have gone away with the man I love." Later came a telegram dated West Point. The girl was there. She had gone straight to the home of her elderly lover's aged mother. "I'm here to marry him," the dispatch said, but she didn't marry. The mother of the man stopped that in short order. "Go home, my dear," she said, tenderly. "My son has not the money to marry you, and think of the scandal." And the girl went back penitent.

Miss Blanche Kelleher, for three years a member of Daniel Frohman's stock company, is to be married to George Hickson, a lumber merchant at Chicago, at the Church of the Transfiguration on Thanksgiving morning. The ceremony will take place at 10 o'clock and Dr. Houghton will officiate. The Rialto did not know of this romance in theatrical life until today, although Miss Kelleher and Mr. Hickson have been engaged for some time. Only the members of Daniel Frohman's company will be present at the ceremony.

A box at the horseshow that was the center of great interest was occupied by Mrs. Astor, her granddaughter, Miss Helen Roosevelt, and James Roosevelt, the young lady's father. Miss Roosevelt is one of the notable debutantes this season. In certain particulars she has the advantage over her debutante cousin, Miss Sarah Van Alen. She is decidedly a prepossessing young lady, with dark hair and eyes, a fresh complexion and well-moulded features. She is, as well, tall and well formed. She was becomingly dressed in silver gray polka-dotted satin and wore a large black hat. Mrs. Astor is apparently enjoying excellent health. She enjoyed the show as well as the constant attention she received. Mrs. John Jacob Astor visited the show, also. To her should be awarded the palm of beauty. She was with the Misses Gerry and was becomingly attired in a gown of snuff-colored cloth and velvet and wore a small toque to match.

From 9 o'clock in the morning until 6 at night on Thursday a line of ticket buyers for the Bernhardt engagement wound in and out of the lobby of the Garden theater. All of the seats for the first week are sold. Even the American managers of the great French actress were forced to buy from speculators seats for friends whose demands for tickets at box-office rates could not be well refused.

Mrs. John W. Mackay arrived from Paris on the steamship Oceanic for a sojourn of two months in the United States. She is still devoted to the memory of her son, and it was only slowly and reluctantly that she went out of mourning. When she did so she speedily opened her hospitable doors and gave two dinner parties in one week in her beautiful home in Carlton House Terrace, London. This has a famous marble staircase which is said to have cost $300,000. Not long ago a requiem mass was ordered by her to be celebrated at the Madeleine, in Paris, for her son, William. She brings to the repose of his soul all the resources of the church to which she belongs. Mrs. Mackay's return to society is greatly appreciated, for she has real popularity among a host of friends because of her charming manner and kindliness.

L. Z. Leiter, accompanied by his elder daughter, is going abroad in January. They will proceed directly to Egypt, where several months will be spent. Mrs. Leiter will remain at her Dupont circle home with Miss Daisy Leiter, who will enjoy the winter season at the capital, from which she has been absent nearly two years. The Misses Leiter are spending the present week in New York.

Some interesting statistics are to be found in the season's programme of dances beginning this week and ending on Ash Wednesday, which comes early this season, on February 20. The meetings of the dancing classes, such subscription dances as the Southern or Wednesday cotillons, the two assembly balls and the annual charity ball make up a list of ninety-one dances for the three months of the winter season. Of these, forty go to Delmonico's. The Waldorf-Astoria gets twenty-eight, including the two assembly balls, which involve about as much expenditure as all the smaller dances put together. Sherry, who once had a large proportion of society's dances, gets seventeen of the ninety-one, and Dodsworth six.

The souvenirs for the fiftieth performance of Grace George, in "Her Majesty," at the Manhattan, this evening, are extremely-taking gold-plated frames in rococo design, with jeweled crown ornamentation, each containing an autographed photograph of Miss George.

Mrs. F. O. French and her daughter, Miss Elsie French, who is to become the bride of Alfred G. Vanderbilt on January 1, will return to their Newport villa, "Harbor View," tonight from this city, where they have been arranging for the wedding gown and trousseau. On Saturday Col. Eaton of the British army, who served in the Boer war, will sail for New York with his wife, the sister of the bride-elect, to be present at the wedding.

The wedding, which is to be a quiet affair, will be solemnized in Trinity church, and Bishop Potter and Rev. Henry Morgan Stone of Trinity church will officiate. The bride will be given away by her only brother, Ames Tuck French, a New York banker.

The mania for combinations has struck even the fraternity which caters to New York's love for fancy dancing. Every professional cakewalker has cast his lot with the new organization, which has raised the price of "walking" and caused managers to wax meditative.

It's almost an old story to tell of stock records being broken, yet that is what happened Wednesday—over 1,800,000 shares having been dealt in. In forty-five minutes 525,000 shares changed hands. Fat pickings for the broker colony.

Uncle Sam's New Diplomacy.

How far our new diplomacy will act alone must depend upon circumstances and our own interests. Under the old diplomacy the dread of foreign alliances was such that even temporary co-operation with another power was studiously avoided. The new policy is bolder and has shown that it will not shrink from combining its strength when thereby we may gain what single-handed we might lose. This policy involves no alliances, nor need the most timid and credulous suspect what in the nature of things cannot take place. Our path was never a tortuous one even when it was most narrow, but the new American diplomacy must command admiration for its broad straightforwardness.—World's Work.

A LIFE SAVED.

A Druggist's Timely and Straightforward Advice Saves the Life of a Prominent Citizen.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Among the Catholic Foresters in this city, none is better known or more universally esteemed than Mr. S. P. Rush, conductor (president) of Holy Name Court, No. 26.

His many friends, inside the Order and outside of its ranks, were therefore much startled to learn that his life was in danger, he having Bright's disease, that most terrible and fatal disease.

Mr. Rush, however, made a grand struggle for his life, taking prescriptions and pills and powders, until his stomach refused food. At last, his local druggist, guided by the numerous inquiries being made at his store for Dodd's Kidney Pills, advised Mr. Rush to buy and try some. This he did, and to his delight he was restored to health and strength.

Mr. Rush says that after commencing the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills he felt much better, but it took two months to effect a cure.

"I took nothing else but Dodd's Kidney Pills during that time, so I know that I owe life and health to them."

What this wonderful remedy has done for Mr. Rush it will certainly do for anyone. It is the only remedy that has never failed to cure Bright's disease.

Mr. Rush is just now receiving the congratulations of his friends, but always finds time to say a good word for the medicine that saved his life.

A unique manner of quenching thirst is recommended by a physician. He states that thirst disappears and perspiration is diminished by keeping a small round pebble in the mouth. # PAIN OPENED HER SKULL

Mrs. Lasher's Remarkable Story—Dr. Greene's Nervura Cured Her.

MRS. FRED. C. LASHER, JR.

The case of Mrs. Fred. C. Lasher, Jr., a well-known woman of Westport, N. Y., is one of the most interesting on record. It is an actual fact that headaches caused her head to split.

"For thirteen years," she says, "I suffered from terrible headaches night and day, until the bones of my skull opened so that the doctor could lay his thumb right into the opening on to my brain. Two doctors attended me and claimed that I was on the verge of insanity. I was under their care for nine years, but got no relief. Then I tried Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and inside of a year the bones of my head had taken their natural shape again."

That Mrs. Lasher's statements are true is vouched for by reliable men of Westport, and by a Justice of the Peace there. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy cured Mrs. Lasher when all other remedies failed, and it cures thousands of suffering women every year. If your head aches, if you cannot sleep and are weak and nervous, remember that this great curative agent, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, will make you well and strong.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is a physician's prescription, formulated from a discovery after years of investigation and experiment. Dr. Greene, 35 West 14th St., New York City, is the discoverer. He can be consulted free personally or by letter.

Carry Own Insurance.

Sheboygan county has a scheme for carrying the insurance on its county buildings that is worth considering by Wood county.

At the meeting of the county board of that county last week, a resolution was introduced providing that, at the expiration of the present policies, the county shall carry its own insurance. The resolution recites that, whereas the county pays $1,200 every three years for insurance and the loss in the past twenty-five years has been but $465, and there are several home insurance companies in the county that are a success, the county should establish a sinking fund for the insurance of the county buildings. Whenever an insurance policy now in force expires, the county treasurer shall deposit the amount of the premium in a reliable bank. After all the policies shall have expired the board shall raise by taxes the sum of $500 annually which shall also be deposited in the insurance fund until the whole amount has reached $5,000, after which no more money shall be raised by taxes, but the interest shall annually be added to the fund.

—Chapman has a lot of beautiful cut glass at his place. It is well worth examining.

T. A. Taylor has been on the lookout for some time for a book that was printed on vellum, one of the Simon pure kind like you don't see in every book case. One day this week he received a letter from England telling him that a book had been found that answered all the specifications and could be bought at the reasonable price of £55 or $275. The book was one that had been hand printed by the monks along about the year 1450 and was adorned with many fancy initial letters in red, also illustrations, and was on vellum. To one with Mr. Taylor's love for the ancient and beautiful in literature this offer was certainly an enticing one and he has it under consideration.

The Jerusalem we see today is not the one that gladdened the eyes of the Holy Family journeying from Nazareth to worship in the Temple. That city lies buried forty, fifty, sometimes over a hundred feet deep in wastage piled in the overthrow of many sieges. The crimson banner of the Moslem floats above the Tower of David, used as barracks, and the Turkish sentinel pacing his rounds looks with ineffable scorn on the Christian. The crumbling Tower of Antonia, the citadel of the temple is occupied by the Governor of Jerusalem, and, if possession counts in the law, it is his right, for he held it before William the Conqueror was crowned with the Saxon's crown in Westminister Abbey.—Mrs. Lew Wallace in the December Ladies' Home Journal.

The life of the average tramp is one of eating, drinking, riding and sleeping. The greatest of these four accomplishments is in getting something to drink, and all sorts of schemes are resorted to to secure a drink of anything that will intoxicate. The latest plea set up by the traveling hobo is reported from Ripon, where a tramp worked upon the sympathy of the druggists by calling on them and pretending to have a hard cough and begged a sample bottle of the numerous cough medicines that they give away. After securing a sufficient number the tramp repairs to his boxcar home and enjoys the contents of the little bottles. As the samples contain a percentage of chloroform, it is said that a "feeling of repose" is forthcoming in a short time.

Photographer O. P. Menzel has been making special effort to supply the holiday trade with all the latest fads in the photograph line this year, and his new lot of samples put out this week are brilliant examples of what can be accomplished by photography when handled by one well versed in the art. There are so many new styles and sizes in photograph cards nowadays that a person who only has his picture "took" once in sixteen years is very apt to be sadly behind the times. The time was only a few years ago when going to the photographer was like visiting the dentist and the pictures turned out bore all the evidences of a painful operation. However, this is all changed now and the photos are made so quick that it is a real pleasure to go through the operation. The styles and shapes are especially attractive this year and those contemplating getting photos should look over Mr. Menzel's display.

COMING TO AMERICA.

Story that President Kruger will Seek a Temporary Home in the United States.

New York, Nov. 27.—Samuel Pearson, formerly commissary-general of the Transvaal army, who has just arrived in this country with a number of other Boer refugees, is responsible for the statement that President Kruger will probably soon seek refuge and a permanent home here.

"President Kruger will leave Paris very soon, I believe," said Gen. Pearson, "and come to America, where with his wife he will make a home until such time as our arms have triumphed and he can return to the South African republic to take up again his office as chief executive of the Boers."

Paris, Nov. 27.—Mr. Kruger began a busy day this morning by making an official call. Before 9 o'clock he departed from the Hotel Scribe, driving in a landau surrounded by republican guards and by bicycle policemen to visit the premier, M. Waldeck-Rousseau. He was accompanied by Dr. Leyds, Dr. Van Hammel and Delegate Fischer. The party was met at the entrance to the premier's saloon by M. Ulrich, director of the cabinet, who introduced the visitors to the prime minister. The interview took place in M. Waldeck-Rousseau's private study and lasted ten minutes. At half-past 9 o'clock the premier, accompanied by M. Ulrich, returned the call.

JOHN BULL BEWILDERED.

Nobody Knows When Costly Boer War will Stop.

London, Nov. 27.—The meeting of Parliament next week will not occur too soon. The public is dazed and bewildered by the confusion which prevails in South Africa.

The trend of events will be clearer when the ministers are in their places to answer questions and the leader writers are provided with cues by those behind the scenes. A war costing $7,500,000 weekly is going on and nobody seems to know when it is likely to stop. Everybody is in a critical mood. Lord Roberts is sharply criticised for a mistaken policy of leniency; there is an amazing outbreak of invective and abuse directed against Gen. Kitchener; there are remonstrances in Liberal journals and from pro-Boer platforms against the barren policy of burning farms and starving the burghers in the impoverished Dutch territory and Lord Salisbury is attacked for neglecting to inform France and other powers that the two republics have been annexed and that the Boers are no longer entitled to recognition as belligerents when they are merely rebels, guerrillas and bandits.

When so many games at cross-purposes are in progress it is impossible for the public to know what is going on. The only point on which there is general agreement is that the French government has maintained a correct attitude during the last week, and that the English people have no reason to complain of the reception of Mr. Kruger. Lord Salisbury has clearly acted with some intelligible motive in refraining from changing the status of the Boers from belligerents to rebels.

PLAN TO CRUSH BOERS.

Non-Combatants and Prisoners to be Sent to the Coast.

London, Nov. 27.—Details of Kitchener's plan of operations against the Boers are cabled by the Daily Mail's Pietermaritzburg correspondent, who says the new colonies are to be divided into circumscribed areas and a mobile force apportioned to each, with infantry, to keep open lines of communication. Ox wagons are to be dispensed with and only light cape carts employed to carry ammunition. All Boers and neutrals captured are to be taken to the coast and kept there until the country is cleared. The work is expected to be long and arduous, lasting possibly for years, and certainly for months. The report that Lord Roberts has asked for 20,000 more regulars to relieve the volunteers and the yeomanry is believed to be quite probable.

COMPLETELY DISPERSED.

Delarey Opposes Clements' March and Meets with Disaster.

London, Nov. 27.—Lord Roberts, cabling from Johannesburg under date of November 26, reports a number of encounters with the Boers at widely-separated points, in which the British captured some cattle and a few prisoners and suffered slight casualties. The most serious affair was an engagement with the forces of Gen. Delarey, numbering about 1000 men, with three guns who opposed Gen. Clements' march towards Rietfontein. The Boers, the dispatch says, were completely dispersed.

RELATIVES CUT OFF.

Playwright Hoyt's Will Offered for Probate in New York.

New York, Nov. 27.—The will of Charles H. Hoyt, the playwright, was filed yesterday in the surrogate's office. It was executed October 15, 1898. After making bequests to personal friends and employes the testator says:

"It is my wish that the theatrical business of Hoyt & McKee be continued and conducted solely by Frank McKee, as it is now managed, the said Frank McKee to receive all of my share of the profits thereof as a recompense for his services, excepting such portion as is hereinbefore bequeathed to Elwood M. Dasher. On the death of said Frank McKee the said business shall cease."

Residuary legatees are the Lambs' club of this city and the Actors' fund.

"In making this will at the present time," the will concludes, "I have no relatives nearer than cousins to be considered by me, and my cousins and distant relatives have never shown by any act any desire for my friendship or good will; hence I have deemed it more consistent with fair dealing and justice to dispose of my property to those who during my life have been my constant companions and well-wishers, and to such charities as in my judgment are most fitting."

Sara and Her Figure.

It has been said that the woman of brains is usually proud of her beauty, and that the pretty woman is vain of her intellect. But listen to this: Sara Bernhardt went to see Mrs. Carter play "Zaza." The great Sara watched the actress with keen and critical eyes. Then she turned to a friend who was sitting beside her. "That woman," said Sara, "has greater talent than I have, but," she added, with emphasis, "she is not my equal in looks, and mine is the better figure of the two."

MAD RUSH OF WATERS.

Monongahela and Allegheny Rivers Flooded.

FAMILIES HOMELESS.

Several Lives Lost and Many People Thrown Temporarily Out of Employment.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 27.—After three days of incessant rain a flood unprecedented for this season of the year and quite unexpected in its fury swept down the Monongahela and Alleghany rivers last night. In their mad rush the waters ruined hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property, caused the loss of at least three lives, temporarily threw out of employment thousands of workmen by the forced suspension of the many industrial establishments lining the banks of both streams and rendered hundreds of families homeless.

The fatalities are:

FREDERICK KOPPMAN, aged 60 years, tripped and fell, breaking his neck, while removing goods from his home.

JOSEPH DAVIS.

JOSEPH FLOCKER, mill-workers, drowned by the capsizing of a skiff in the Allegheny.

The lowlands in Pittsburg, Allegheny, Sharpsburg and McKeesport are inundated, and nearly every plant fronting the two rivers have been forced to shut down. Hundreds of families in these districts have either been driven from their homes or are living in the upper floors and using skiffs. There were many narrow escapes from drowning during the night and several men are reported to the police as missing, but the only known fatalities directly traceable to the flood were those of Koppman, Flocker and Davis.

Davis and Flocker, with three companions, attempted to row across the Allegheny in a skiff, which became unmanageable and collided with a coal boat. The men were thrown into the river and Davis and Flocker drowned. The others clung to the upturned boat and were rescued after being carried two miles down the river.

At Neville island the four-span railroad bridge in course of construction was swept away during the night. It was being erected for the American Steel and Wire company and was also to be used for passenger traffic by the Pittsburg & Lake Erie Railroad company.

It is reported that a shanty boat with three traders, whose names are unknown, broke from its moorings near Millvale, Pa., about daybreak and sank in the Allegheny river with all on board.

Ohio-River Rising.

Parsons, W. Va., Nov. 27.—High water has done thousands of dollars of damage in this county during the past thirty-six hours. Water put out the fires in the courthouse basement and surrounded the schoolhouse, compelling adjournment of court and school.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Nov. 27.—Today opened clear after a week's steady storm of rain and snow. The Ohio river is rising rapidly and reached a stage of 15 feet 8 inches at 8 a. m. today. The stage of the Little Kanawha at Creston and Grantsville was 15 feet, but no fears are entertained thus far of a flood.

Alleged Disaster Denied.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 27.—During last evening a rumor of a railway disaster in West Virginia in which 200 persons were said to have perished, spread through the country, but advices this morning indicate that the train is safe. A landslide near Hinton, W. Va., covered the track with earth, and the report was that a Chesapeake & Ohio train had struck it and been hurled into the Greenbrier river. Wires were gone and it was hours before direct news could be obtained. Officials of the railway at 1 a. m. said they had dispatches showing the train had stopped in time and was delayed by the landslide.

EX-POLICE CHIEF OF ASHLAND ROBBED

Albert Prothero, Held Up in Chicago, Catches Thief and Nearly Kills Him.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—Albert Prothero, an ex-chief of police from Ashland, Wis., yesterday dozed off for a moment in a saloon at Halsted and Lake streets. Two men promptly took possession of his watch and $5 and ran for the street. The man from Wisconsin pursued the fugitives out on the Halsted street viaduct and there in the shadows laid an earnest hand upon Philip O'Hearne and would have killed him had not Policeman P. J. Mulvihill interfered. The prisoner was patched together at the hospital and locked in a cell.

BECOMING ACUTE.

Relations Between United States and Turkey—Norton Still Denied an Exequatur.

Constantinople, Nov. 27.—The relations between the United States government and the Porte are becoming acute. Mr. Griscom, the American charge d'affaires, went to the yildiz palace Sunday and had an interview with Tewfik Pasha, minister of foreign affairs, and Tahsin Bey, first secretary at the palace. The interview, however, was barren of result.

While the Porte outwardly persists in the attitude it has assumed regarding the question of granting an exequatur to the United States consul at Harpoot, there is reason to believe that the dispatch of the battleship Kentucky to Smyrna has made a marked impression in official circles.

LODGE GOAT HURT HIM.

Iowa Woodman Sues Initiators for $10,700 Damages for Injuries.

Clinton, Ia., Nov. 27.—Members of the Modern Woodmen of America are awaiting with interest the outcome of a suit begun in this county, in which Joseph Burke of this city sues Michael Hines, Martin Doland and Charles W. Beeby for $10,700 for alleged personal injuries. Although Burke makes no mention of the Modern Woodmen lodge, it is known that he was injured while being initiated into the camp at Charlotte, this state, in December, 1898. The defendants were members of the degree staff of the camp, and it is said they put the plaintiff through the "royal bumper degree" with a vengeance. The plaintiff alleges that he was injured "by being struck, bruised and thrown on the floor" and that the injuries received are permanent. It is said that the Woodmen have side degrees for the pleasure of the members and that it was during the working of one of these degrees that the plaintiff was injured.

Drowned in Munising Bay.

Munising, Mich., Nov. 27.—William Lemm, who was drowned in Munising bay Saturday night, had lived on Grand island fifty-three years and was known by nearly every vesselman on the great lakes. He was about to go to Detroit to live with his only child, Mrs. Cora Foy.

NO HOPE FOR DAVIS.

The Senator is Still Alive, but it is Unlikely that He will Survive the Day.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 27.—United States Senator Davis was still alive this morning, but it was thought by his attendants that he would scarcely survive the day. He is much weaker and slowly sinking. Until yesterday the family bore up bravely, continuing to hope almost against conviction that the senator might yet be restored to renewed health and strength. The delirium has been so violent, however, that it scarcely seemed as if the senator's weakened frame could endure for long the terrific strain to which it was subjected by his disease-disordered brain.

There are few callers at the house. Those in attendance on the sick man differ materially as to the termination, one of the physicians having said that life might depart within twenty-four hours, while others declare the senator may hold out for another week. Mrs. Davis attempted to reach Bishop Whipple by telephone, but he had gone South, and Dr. Theodore Sedgwick and Archdeacon Appleby of the Episcopal church were called in to offer prayers at the dying statesman's bedside.

At 10 o'clock Dr. Stone issued the following bulletin:

"Senator Davis has failed rapidly since 4 o'clock this morning. Respiration 16, pulse 140 to 146, temperature 104 2-5."

At noon the physicians stated that Senator Davis was still living but extremely weak.

MR. WILSON DEAD.

Best Informed Man on Revenue Subjects in Government Service.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—George W. Wilson, commissioner of internal revenue, died this forenoon in his apartments at the Riggs house, of Bright's disease, complicated with asthma. He had been dangerously ill for several days past. There were with him at the time of his death Mrs. Wilson, his daughter, Mrs. Pardonner, and several of his associates of the treasury department.

George Washington Wilson was 57 years of age and a native of Ohio. He entered the Union army when 18 years old as a private in the Fifty-fourth Ohio volunteer infantry and served throughout the war, coming out a first lieutenant. In 1866 he took up the practice of law and in 1869 entered the internal revenue service. He served in various capacities, rising from one important position to another until he became the head of the bureau. Mr. Wilson was regarded as the most thoroughly informed man on internal revenue subjects who ever entered the government service and was consulted on all measures affecting the revenues that have been before Congress for many years.

The funeral will be at Hamilton, O., on Thanksgiving day. The party, including Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Pardonner and Chief Deputy Williams, will leave here tomorrow over the Chesapeake & Ohio at 3 p. m., going via Cincinnati to Hamilton, where the interment will take place.

Editor Dorr Dead.

New York, Nov. 27.—Robert E. A. Dorr, president of the Mail and Express company and publisher of that paper, died at his home in this city today. Death was due to a complication of diseases. Mr. Dorr had been in ill-health for about six months.

He leaves a wife and son and daughter. There will be no change in the management of the Mail and Express company.

David R. Leeper Dead.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 27.—David R. Leeper, ex-mayor of this city, and former member of the Indiana Legislature, died here today, aged 70. For many years he was a leading Democratic politician.

DAVID WHITNEY DYING.

Millionaire Lumberman of Detroit Can Live but a Few Days at Most.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 27.—The illness of David Whitney, Jr., the millionaire lumberman of this city, has taken such a serious turn that his death is expected at any moment. He has been suffering from heart trouble and recently kidney trouble showed itself. His daughter, Mrs. Gray Whitney Hoff, who resides in Paris, is now on the ocean on her way home. She is expected Saturday or Sunday, but it is not believed Mr. Whitney will live that long. Mr. Whitney is one of the wealthiest men in Detroit. He is 70 years old.

DISTRESS AT LIVADIA.

Suffering of the Czarina is Greatly Complicated.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 24 (via Paris, Nov. 27.—Prof. Schereschevski, the surgeon of the imperial family and a famous specialist on nerve diseases, has arrived at Livadia. The Empress Dowager will leave Copenhagen on November 29 and it is announced that she will arrive at Livadia on December 10. Although the daily bulletins from official circles are reassuring, the court is troubled and anxious.

No bulletins are allowed to be published concerning the really pitiable state in which it is believed the Czarina also now is. Her suffering is greatly complicated by her delicate condition. The imperial children are all in good health, and no alarm is expressed concerning them. Count Lamsdorff, the foreign minister, is busy daily replying to the inquiries wired from various European courts about both the Czar and the Czarina.

Livadia, European Russia, Nov. 27.—The improvement in the Czar's condition continues, judging from the following bulletin issued today:

"The Czar passed a good day yesterday. At 9 in the evening his temperature was 97.9; pulse, 66. During the night his majesty slept well. This morning the Emperor's condition and general strength were perfectly satisfactory; temperature, 96.8; pulse, 66."

ARRESTED ON SUSPICION.

Two Men with Stolen Canadian Money in Their Possession.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 27.—James M. Simpson of Montreal and Louis Matheis of Rochester, N. Y., were arrested here last night on suspicion, and the police in searching them found in their possession $300 in Canadian $10 notes that did not appear to be valid. Today it was ascertained that the notes are part of a $10,000 issue of the Dominion Bank of Toronto, which was stolen from the bank branch at Napanee, when it was so sensationally robbed a number of months ago. The notes which were stolen were signed, but not countersigned. The prisoners claim to have come by the money honestly.

WHISKY CURE PROVES FATAL.

Acid in Lemon Extract Used as Substitute by Iowa Man Causes Death.

Ottumwa, Ia., Nov. 27.—The means adopted by Rodney McFee, a painter and carriage trimmer at Lacona, to overcome the liquor habit was the cause of his death. To cure his craving for intoxicants he used lemon extract as a beverage in lieu of whisky. He died in great agony last Saturday evening as a result of acid poisoning. He leaves a wife and two children

FRENCH MAY INTERFERE.

Proposition to Arbitrate Transvaal Disputes.

IN MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

Gen. Cronje, Now at St. Helena, to be Presented with a Sword of Honor.

Paris, Nov. 27.—The officials of the municipal council of Paris and of the general council of the Seine were received at 10 a. m. by Mr. Kruger, in the Hotel Scribe. The interview was private and brief. Immediately after the visitors had departed Mr. Kruger drove to the Hotel de Ville. He received an ovation from a large crowd massed in the square in front of the edifice. Mr. Kruger was conducted to the debating hall, where he was given the arm chair reserved for representatives of governments. The municipal councilors and the people in the galleries loudly cheered the distinguished visitor. Vice-President Escudier delivered an eloquent address, saying Paris had given Mr. Kruger a welcome worthy of his noble character and the grandeur of his cause. He also said: "You have heard the heart of Paris beat. It is the heart of France. Let the people speak and speak loudly, and arbitration will impose itself, as a necessary satisfaction to justice and civilization."

The president of the general council spoke in a similar strain.

Mr. Kruger replied in energetic tones, thanking the speakers for the sentiments expressed. He said he was deeply grateful for the welcome which was a continuation of and a crowning of that France already given him. Since he landed the former President added, he had been on a rising wave of acclamation. He was very thankful for what had been done and for what they wished to do for him and his people, who were still struggling and were not yet defeated. Their resistance continues and will still continue. They will ever struggle for independence, liberty and justice. Continuing, Mr. Kruger said: "Ah! Why cannot they hear your acclamations? It would redouble their courage."

Mr. Kruger also said he hoped they would yet know them, one day in the future, when they had recovered their independence. He regretted arbitration had been refused and he would never cease to demand it.

The president of the municipal council, tomorrow, will propose in the council a vote in favor of arbitrating the Transvaal disputes.

Henri Rochefort, accompanied by a deputation including Deputies Millevoye and Paulin-Mery, Senator Provost De Launay and MM. Coppe and Le Maitre, today presented Mr. Kruger with a sword of honor destined for Gen. Cronje, now a prisoner on the Island of St. Helena.

Portuguese After Dewet.

Lourenco Marques, Nov. 27.—A detachment of eighty mounted Portuguese troops, with two guns, crossed the river this morning to Catembo. It is reported that Gen. Dewet is in Portuguese territory and in that district.

PLOT TO KILL ROBERTS.

Conspirators Laid a Mine Which was to be Blown Up—Ten Italians Arrested.

London, Nov. 27.—According to a special edition of the Evening Standard today, a plot to assassinate Lord Roberts, in which two foreigners are concerned, has been discovered.

It appears that the conspirators laid a mine which was designed to be blown up Sunday while Lord Roberts was in church at Johannesburg, but the police and Lord Roberts' bodyguard frustrated the conspiracy. Ten men, mostly Italians, have been arrested. These details, the Evening Standard says, it has been unable to verify.

WITH GREAT POMP.

Funeral Services in London of the Late Sir Arthur S. Sullivan.

London, Nov. 27.—With all the pomp and circumstance which might have attended the obsequies of a member of the royal family, the remains of Sir Arthur S. Sullivan, who died here Thursday last, were interred in St. Paul's cathedral today.

At the preliminary services in the Chapel Royal, the Queen and Emperor William of Germany, the Prince of Wales and other royalties were represented, while the musical and dramatic world attended in large numbers. Joseph H. Choate, the United States ambassador, and other diplomats and numerous Americans, including the Countess of Essex and Mrs. Ronalds were also present. The coffin was imbedded in magnificent floral tributes sent from far and near in such numbers that they filled four hearses.

The preliminary service ended, the procession re-formed and proceeded to St. Paul's cathedral. During the long wait the band of the Scots guards played Chopin's and Beethoven's Dead marches, while from the organ pealed Mendelssohn's Tribute to the Dead.

On the broad steps of the cathedral, the dean and chapter of St. Paul's and the white-robed choristers, surrounded by thousands of spectators, met the procession. As the great doors flew open the sunlight streamed in and the voices of the choir, strong and sweet, broke the solemn silence which had prevailed up to that time throughout the cathedral. In a coffin, almost hidden beneath wreaths of flowers, the remains were borne up the aisle until they reached the chancel steps, directly beneath the dome. There a catafalque had been erected on the edge of a narrow opening which led to the crypt. Around the opening this inscription was worked in flowers: "His sun has gone down while it was yet day."

SIX STUDENTS DISMISSED.

President Kane of Wabash College Creates a Sensation.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 27.—President Kane of Wabash college, the institution of learning located at Crawfordsville, learned Saturday night that some of the students were out on a "lark," and he left his home and followed them at a distance in their perambulations about the city. They first took a wine supper at a restaurant and then went to a resort where they engaged in a dance while one of their number played the piano. Though the carousal was kept up till a late hour, President Kane determined to see it out, and, unknown to the students, kept within seeing distance of everything they did.

After chapel services this morning the six students, three of whom are seniors, were invited into the president's office and dismissed from the institution. When the surprised students asked for the cause of such summary action they were informed of their movements on Saturday night, and when one of them questioned the truth of President Kane's information he was told that the president was an eye witness of all that had occurred.

DRIFTING ASHORE ON THE SANDS.

Heavily-Laden Schooner Dismasted and Helpless—Heavy Sea was Running.

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 26.—The patrolmen of the Wallis Sands Life Saving station today sighted a heavily laden schooner dismasted and helpless, drifting ashore on the sands. A high gale prevailed and a heavy sea was running. The schooner was a two-master and looked to be a lumber carrier, but her name could not be made out. There was no sign of life on board and it was thought by those on shore that the crew may have been swept overboard by the furious seas. The deckload had been carried away. The life-savers prepared to go to the schooner as soon as she struck bottom.

The vessel struck about one hour after the lifesavers sighted her and began to go to pieces at once. The lifesavers went to the vessel, but found no one on board. The name on the stern board was "Advance." The lifesavers think she was a Britisher of about 140 tons.

STEAMER FOUNDERS.

Twenty-six Lives Are Lost by Shipwreck in Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Quebec, Que., Nov. 26.—Twenty-six persons, every soul on board the crack coast passenger steamer St. Olaf, perished during the storm, which drove the vessel upon the rocks on the dangerous north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and destroyed it.

At the scene of the wreck, which is opposite Seven islands, 300 miles below Quebec, the sweep of last night's gale was terrific. The gulf there is nearly fifty miles wide, and, while the hurricanes which rage there frequently have free play, the number of small islands that dot the gulf give poor sea room for buffeted ships. The disaster to the St. Olaf is only one of many that have taken place there in the last few years.

Capt. Lemaistre, in command of the steamer, and several of his officers and crew belonged to this city. The first dispatch from Seven islands brought but very meager news and it was only late in the afternoon that A. Frazer & Co., owners of the steamer, were informed of the extent of the disaster. Besides the nineteen men of the steamer's crew seven passengers had also perished.

The St. Olaf was an iron steamer of 305 tons and was built on the Clyde at Port Glasgow in 1882. She was valued at about $40,000 and insured for about $20,000. She left Sheldrake on Wednesday and shortly after this the signal station dispatches reported rough weather, with gales of wind and snow, and it is supposed that during one of these gales the St. Olaf ran ashore on one of the rocks at the entrance of the Seven islands, as the dispatch states that she was wrecked on Boule island.

Capt. Lemaistre was well and favorably known as a careful and skillful coast navigator and had been a resident of this city for some years.

The officers and crew of the St. Olaf were:

LEMAISTRE, P. T., captain.
CARON, LOUIS, first mate.
BOUDREAU, CHARLES, second mate.
VEIT, F. T., purser.
KEMBLAY, JOSEPH T., steward.
ROY, JOSEPH, cook.
LAMARIE, ART, seaman.
GAUTHIER, JOSEPH, seaman.
DOYLE, SAM, seaman.
BLAINEY, WILLIAM, seaman.
VIGNEAUTT, AMEDEE, lamp trimmer.
ARSENEAU, JOSEPH, cabin boy.
LAFLEUR, GUS, messroom boy.
BELANGER, EUGENE, chief engineer.
BRUNELL, JAMES, second engineer.
BELANGER, WILFRED, third engineer.
CORMIER, ODILON, fireman.
GAGNE, JOHN, fireman.
DOYLE, THOMAS, fireman.
GAGNEN, LOUIS, of Pentecost, passenger.
BACON, JOSEPH, Sheldrake, passenger.
BOND, CLARENCE, Sheldrake, passenger.
CHINIC, JEREMIE, Sheldrake, passenger.
MAHAR, MICHAEL, Sheldrake, passenger.
BEAUDIN, NAPOLEON, St. John's river, passenger.
PAGE, MISS MARIE, Thunder river, passenger.

As soon as the news of the wreck reached Seven islands a searching party went out to attempt to rescue any of the shipwrecked people if possible, but this was impossible, as everyone aboard the vessel seems to have been lost.

A THRIFTY PREMIER.

British Prime Minister Fixes Himself and Kinsmen in High-Salaried Positions.

London, Nov. 26.—Lord Salisbury has smashed the record for nepotism to smithereens. Not only has he favored himself with a paying office (as prime minister he receives no salary), but he has secured comfortable and lucrative berths for no less than five of his near relatives.

When he held the office of prime minister and secretary of state for foreign affairs Lord Salisbury received a salary of $25,000 a year. He will get the same pay now as keeper of the privy seal, although the work will be much lighter. His nephew, Arthur J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury, will draw a similar amount; his son-in-law, Lord Selborne, first lord of the admiralty, gets a fine house, rent free, and $22,500 besides; another nephew, Gerald Balfour, president of the board of trade, will cash government vouchers for $10,000; his relative by marriage J. W. Lowther, who is to be reappointed deputy speaker and chairman of ways and means, will have a stipend of $12,500.

The premier's son, Lord Cranborne, under secretary of state for foreign affairs, gets the poorest job of the lot and the smallest pay. He will have to do a lot of work and be paid only $7500. Thus the total amount received by the Salisbury connections from the British government will be over $100,000 a year—more than the joint salaries of President McKinley and his entire cabinet.

PERSONA NON GRATA.

Why Turkish Porte Refused Dr. Norton an Exequatur—Unfriendly to the Turks.

New York, Nov. 26.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt, says a Herald dispatch from Berlin, states that the reason why the Porte refused an exequatur to the newly-appointed United States consul at Harpoot is because when a missionary he showed himself unfriendly to the Turks and spread untrue stories about massacres. The consul will, however, in spite of the decision of the Porte, leave for Harpoot to take up his new duties.

As the American battleship Kentucky is on her way to Smyrna it is extremely probable that the Porte will give way.

A Washington dispatch to the Herald says Mr. Griscom, the charge d'affaires in Constantinople, will urge the sublime Porte to issue an exequatur in order that Dr. Thomas H. Norton may enter upon his duties as consul at Harpoot as promptly as possible.

FASHIONS IN ST. PETERSBURG.

Short Skirts, Black Shoes and Gloves Without Fingers.

From St. Petersburg a correspondent writes: Although Paris is enjoying a late summer and the garb of the moment consists of diaphanous robes of delicate colors, trimmed with lace, here the talk is all of winter overcoats and goloshes. The only novelty is the short skirt, "a la bicycliste," but even that was worn in Paris as long ago as last spring. It is, however, none the less welcome, since what could be more inconvenient and fatal to the elegance of a well-dressed woman than to be compelled to sustain the weight of long and heavy skirts during the muddy season which we are now experiencing? These skirts are worn plain, without any attempt at adornment. We have said goodby to white and even brown boots, and now wear only black chaussures, cut high, and with buttons. The favorite mode of hairdressing is the coiffure "Rejane," the details of which are sufficiently well known. A considerable change has been made in the matter of gloves. These are now worn without fingers, but beautifully embroidered on the backs, adorned with precious stones, and fastened with elaborate buttons. They are, of course, very expensive, and it is also necessary to wear with them several handsome rings.—London Telegraph.

Stolen Money Returned.

Nearly thirty years ago Jonas Silverman, a farmer living near Springfield, O., was swindled out of $1500 by sharpers while on a train near Valparaiso, Ind. The criminals escaped and ere long one of the three died. The other two drifted to the Klondike a year or two ago, became rich and have just returned to the states. They hunted up Mr. Silverman, paid him the $1500 and gave him $1000 more by way of interest on the forced loan.

'Twixt Life and Death

"You don't know how dull it is here," she pleaded.

"Yes, I do. I know that this house must be terribly dull in comparison with the glitter and movement of the scenes you have lived in—that the life here must be terribly monotonous after an existence of perpetual change and variety."

"And then I am only a girl, with no serious object in life——"

"If you were a man with the most serious purpose a man can have—the determination to subdue inclination and renounce the dearest desire of his heart—the result would have been the same. If a quiet life had been the cause of your unhappiness, you should have found happiness in this last change. But are you happy?" She kept her head down, making no sign. "No; you have not found even satisfaction. We cannot buy happiness—we can only buy pleasures, and they are scarcely better than the narcotics that for a little while make us forget, and like narcotics, these pleasures must be taken by those whose happiness depends upon them in stronger and stronger doses till the end comes. Look at Goldy in the cage there. If external conditions count for anything, he should have died of misery the day after he was taken from the fields. But he lives and sings there in a prison."

"And why can't I?"

"The case is different. That little prisoner has all the food he needs, but our craving hearts wish for the nourishment that is denied us. It seems to me that we need nothing here but love. I think I could live content with all this small room holds."

"You are a man," Nessa said, still striving to hold her ground.

"And for that reason, I am less easy to satisfy than you who are a woman. There's not the difference between us that you imagine. Look up in my face. Do you see no change—no trace of past suffering?"

She looked up quickly, and with tender sympathy overcoming her silence, said: "Have you been ill?"

"Not more than you, who tell me you are well. But I have suffered as you have. Dear, you know the cause. I love you and all my happiness depends upon your loving me." Her head had sunk again. He waited a moment, and then continued:

"I know your suffering and mine spring from the same cause, but whether you love me or another I dare not say. I have only my hope to guide me. Give me a sign that I may know." He loosened her hands; they slid down into her lap heavily.

"A word—a sign—to tell me that you love me or love me not," he urged passionately.

She thought of Grace and started to her feet, white and trembling violently. She could not stay there, feeling herself unequal to this conflict.

"You must not leave me thus," he cried, taking her by the arm, as she made a quick, terrified step toward the door. "For heaven's sake, put me out of this suspense! Oh, you do love me, darling!"

For a moment she stood irresolute, swayed between principle and passion, and then, her fervent love throwing all conscientious scruples to the wind, she flung her arms about his neck and sank, with a cry of joy, upon his breast.

He kissed her cold cheek till the hot blood rose, murmuring incoherent words of passionate love. Then again the image of Grace rose before Nessa's eyes, freezing her heart with a sense of guilt and shame.

"No, no!" she cried, shrinking from his lips and freeing herself by a physical effort from his arms. "I am nothing. It is Grace you must love."

"It is you I love—you, who are all the world to me. And now that I know you love me no one on earth shall separate us."

She shook her head wildly and escaped from the room. He left the house almost immediately after. To tell Grace what had happened was the first duty that presented itself to his mind.

It was less easy for Nessa to determine the course she had to take. For a time it was impossible for her to compose her thoughts into any delicate form. She shook from head to foot as she sat upon the side of her bed endeavoring to overcome the convulsive agitation of mind and body. Little by little, as the physical and mental agitation subsided, certain convictions rose distinct and clear from the tumult of ideas that crowded her mind. First she saw the responsibility of her becoming Sweyn's wife. Her whole soul revolted against an act which seemed to her a deliberate crime against Grace. Next, she perceived the necessity of severing all communion with Sweyn. How could she evade him? She saw only one way of escaping temptation; she must fly. That, too, was obvious. She must leave the house and never return to it.

All that remained of her money, save a few shillings, she inclosed in an envelope with a few lines to Mrs. Blount expressing her regret for all the trouble she had given, and begging her to accept the sum in payment of her board and lodging; then she took a last look round the room, ran noiselessly down the stairs, and left the house unobserved.

About the same time, from her lodgings in Marble Grove, Fulham, Mrs. Redmond set out for the restaurant in Regent street, where she was to meet and lunch with Lord Carickbairn. It struck one as she reached the Chandos. She could be punctual when it suited her. At the door she was met by a man in a clerical hat and frock coat.

"You, alone?" she said in surprise, giving her hand, and on his nodding gloomily, she asked, "Are they upstairs?"

"I don't know whether she is. I haven't been up to see. I've been looking out for you. Come up the street; got something to say."

They walked toward the Circus briskly and in silence for twenty yards; then Mrs. Redmond spoke, "Where's Carickbairn?"

"At home in a strait waistcoat," he replied, in a low tone of discontent.

"What?"

"Attack came on in the night. I thought it would. Didn't you see how queer he looked at supper?"

"I noticed you kept your eye on him, and were precious particular about the knives."

"I can generally tell within a few hours when he's going to be bad."

"Oh, well, you can tell her that he's sprained his ankle, or something. She won't mind. She's not ready for it yet, and it's no good frightening her by being in a hurry; she might suspect. It will be time enough when her money runs out and she feels the want of it. I suppose he'll be all right to-morrow or the day after, and a day or two won't make much difference to us."

"Won't it, though!" said he, sullenly. "The governor's coming back."

"What?"

"Hexham will be back this afternoon. I found a telegram from him when I got in last night. He started from Dublin yesterday evening."

Mrs. Redmond muttered an imprecation between her set teeth, and after a pause asked, in a tone of dismay, "What are we to do now?"

"Nothing; the game's up! You may lay your life Hexham won't give us a chance."

"Why not? Couldn't he stand in with us? If we all three go equal shares in the money we shan't do badly."

The man laughed at her.

"You don't know what you're talking about," he said. "Why, Hexham's as honest as the day. He'd never have been trusted to take care of Carickbairn otherwise. If he chose to be dishonest he could bolt safely with more than you could offer him for putting his hand to such a dangerous job as this. He'd break every bone in my body if I hinted such a thing to him."

"Well, something must be done," she said in desperation.

"Then you'll have to look sharp about it; he'll be in London by five."

"Where is Carickbairn now?" she asked, after a long pause.

"In his rooms. I left him strapped down."

"Look here!" said she, taking his arm, and speaking low. "I'll undertake to bring the girl into the room in a couple of hours if you'll shut 'em in together and—and leave a knife where he can get at her."

"Well, you are a Jezebel!" he muttered, glancing at her sidelong.

"Never mind what I am; will you do it? You get as much as I do; you made your own terms, and knew what they were for. Will you do it?"

"What's the good? The paroxysm's over by this time. He'll be as helpless as a child when I get back."

"Everything's against us," she said, bitterly; then, exasperated by the man's silence, she cried: "Why don't you suggest something? You didn't leave him to see me for nothing, I know."

"Oh, I'm content to throw up the affair. It's too confounded risky. Hexham pays me well; and a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush."

"That's all very fine. I know you—you want to put all the responsibility on my shoulders; but you are just as loath as I am to throw up the chance of making a fortune in a day."

"Well, I thought there might be just a chance that you had brought the girl up to the scratch. As I tell you after this bout Carickbairn may be as easily led as a child. We've had everything ready for the last week. If we could only get the girl to consent to marry him we might put them in a train and pack them off to the continent before Hexham arrives."

Mrs. Redmond stopped suddenly, and, turning round, said:

"Let's go back to the restaurant and find her!"

CHAPTER XXV.

A glazed door with a gauze blind closed the entrance from the staircase to the private dining room of the Chandos Restaurant. Peeping over the top of the blind, Mrs. Redmond saw Nessa seated at a table. She turned, and by a sign bade her companion in the clerical dress look. The girl sat in an attitude of deep dejection, looking listlessly through the window at her side; the light falling on her face revealed an expression of apathy and weariness in it which encouraged their hopes.

"You leave her to me. Go and fetch Carickbairn, and bring enough money to pay their fare; I have none."

The man turned and went downstairs; Mrs. Redmond entered the dining room.

"What's the matter?" asked Mrs. Redmond; "you look more down on your luck than usual to-day."

"I wish we were in Brussels," said Nessa. "You were telling me yesterday that there you could get an engagement, while I cultivated my voice, you know——"

"So do I. It's a lovely little place. Music in the parks, lots of smartly dressed women and children, people sitting outside the cafes in the warm sunshine, lots of lovely old buildings with a market place in the middle full of flowers, peasants in great wooden shoes. Oh, it is quaint and lovely!" She clasped her hands and threw up her eyes, and a faint smile came in to Nessa's face with the odd picture this description presented to her imagination.

"It must be interesting," she said.

"Interesting, I should think it was! Why, it's a thing to make you forget every trouble you ever had. Couldn't we run over there?"

"I have no money left."

"Tut, tut! There, that's it. I haven't a couple of pounds in the world. It's all gone; and I can't tell you, I'm sure we've been as careful as we could; we have bought nothing that wasn't absolutely necessary to ladies in our position. Do you really mean you have nothing left?"

"Yes. I don't think I've more than enough to pay for our lunch."

"Is it possible? Why, what are we to do for subsistence? I positively dare not run into debt again. Do you think you could borrow anything from your friends?"

Nessa shook her head. It was almost a satisfaction to her to think that there was no alternative left; Mrs. Redmond could scarcely conceal her exultation.

"Well, one thing is very certain," she said; "I must not think of brighter skies. I must accept that engagement and go drabbling about the provinces with that wretched music hall company. You wouldn't care for that sort of thing, would you?"

Nessa shook her head as she drew together the crumbs on the tablecloth.

"Of course you must do something for yourself if your friends won't help you; but luckily for you you're not bound to accept such a degrading position as mine. You've only got to say the word and you can get all that money can buy—carriages, horses, dress, diamonds—everything. Ah," with a shake of her head, "fancy! in a couple of hours you could be dashing down to Queensborough in a saloon carriage, get on board one of those lovely boats, with the sea sparkling around you and the soft breeze blowing all the gloom out of your mind, steam up that beautiful river to Flushing, and to-morrow morning be lounging under an awning on one of those delicious Rhine boats passing through the most gorgeous scenery in the world, with some new object of interest at every turn to give delight to life. There, dear, it's impossible to think of any unpleasantness under such conditions, and everything about you seems perfectly charming." Mrs. Redmond continued to dilate upon the delights of continental travel until her imagination and recollections were exhausted, encouraged to the utmost by the evident interest with which Nessa listened. At length, fatigued by the effort and impatient of Nessa's silence, she said, in a tone of irritation:

"I can't tell what you're about to refuse such a chance. I suppose you've got some boyish romantic attachment." She waited for a response, but Nessa made none. "I thought so," she said, with growing vexation at the failure of her eloquence; "you've been awfully close about your friends; but I can see well enough what's the matter. You're smitten with some fellow whom you hope to catch."

Nessa shook her head.

"Well, you expect to find some one better than Carickbairn—a duke perhaps."

Nessa shook her head once more without a sign of resenting Mrs. Redmond's sarcasm.

"Then I can't understand why you hesitate. I should have thought you had had enough of misery."

"It may be that is why I do hesitate. If I could only love Carickbairn——"

"I don't see why you shouldn't love him; he can give you everything that women of our class marry for. You talk about love as if you were still a child at school. It's just these matches that result from such silly sentiment that turn out bad. I never knew any couple yet who married for love who didn't detest each other before a year was ended. Can't you use your eyes? Look down in the street there; can you pick out a single well-dressed woman who looks as if she were in love? Not one; they have all found that the real enjoyment of life comes from dress and position and all that. Love is an amusement—it lasts, at the outside, for a year or so; but wealth brings enjoyment for a whole lifetime. What would become of us after forty if we had nothing but love to live upon?"

"Oh, we must love as long as we live; it is part of our life," said Nessa, fervently. "Do not old people weep when death parts them from those they love?"

"That's affection; and it's precisely that affection which springs up after marriage when two people have married sensibly, and not married from inclination."

As Nessa seemed to accept this proposition, Mrs. Redmond continued:

"A woman must come to love a man who is always providing her with what she wants."

(To be continued.)

The Magic of a Whistle.

I have heard his boyish whistle in the dark and dewey gloam
As he trudged across the meadows, as he drove the cattle home.
I have heard him trill a measure with
the cadence of a lark,
And his boyish reason for it is: "It
frightens off the dark."
Oft there seems a something lurking in the tall-grown plots of grass
And his blood runs cold at thinking it
may grab him should he pass,
But he knows fear cannot linger in a
brain for very long
If two lips are pursed for whistling and
a heart is tuned to song.

Though the eerie shadows hover and the clouds shut out the stars,
Up the pasture path he whistles, whistles
taking down the bars,
And the tune he pipes would surely any
tired heart regale
When he times it to the splashing in the
frothed-o'er milking pail.
All the shadows, all the darkness grows
affrighted at the joy
And the happiness that bubbles from
the glad heart of a boy,
While Fear's pickets rout and scatter
'fore the hosts of Courage strong
If two lips are pursed for whistling and
a heart is tuned to song.

In my worldly walks of living, in my
struggle after pelf,
His philosophy of courage I have taken
to myself,
When the clouds of care and trouble veil
the blessed star of Hope,
And Misfortune waits to grab me as
along the path I grope,
When beset by fear I falter; see of light
no feeble spark,
Then his boyish plan I welcome "for to
frighten off the dark,"
And I reach my hopes' bright haven,
since one cannot wander wrong,
If two lips are pursed for whistling and
a heart is tuned to song.

Altogether Too Good.

Dearboy—I do not see what possible objection you can offer to me, Mr. Gimp.

Gimp—That's just it. I don't want a man in my family so infernally good that my wife and daughter will continually hold him up as an example to me.—Philadelphia North American.

MICHIGAN ITEMS.

—Muskegon celery-growers were hit hard by the cold wave. The loss on celery in the fields will reach $2000.

—The first deer which have been found in Mason county in two years were killed last week.

—Berrien county farmers endeavored to circumvent the Hessian fly this year by sowing their wheat late in October. When the snow came the wheat was just nicely up and a good crop is expected.

—A little boy of Wheatland, Hillsdale county, put three live mice into a glass fruit jar, and soon after the jar was missed. Three days later the family cat was found near the house with her head in the jar. She had gotten the cover off in some way, put her head in and eaten the mice, but so closely did the jar fit that it had to be broken before pussy's head could be released.

—Farmers in the vicinity of Royal Oak claim they were unable to obtain help to harvest the crop of tubers and that 3000 bushels still lie in the ground.

—Farmers around La Salle reaped a harvest out of beans, this fall, about 33,000 bushels being shipped to Eastern markets by two firms.

—Burglars entered the department store of Mack & Co. at Ann Arbor and carried off between $1500 and $2000 worth of the best silks and furs.

—Bay City architects are drawing plans for the new German-American cooperative sugar factory which is to be erected south of Salzburg, and the intention is to put the foundation in this fall so an early start on the superstructure can be made in the spring. The company will introduce a new feature in the handling of beets, inasmuch as it will not require farmers to pit them, but will do that work on the factory grounds.

—The silk thieves who have been operating for some months past in the western portion of the state have taken a long jump since their last scene of operation, and one night last week struck Sault Ste. Marie and carried off $650 worth of fine black silks from one of the stores there.

—The Cheboygan Tribune says that that city can boast of the youngest grandmother in the United States. The lady in question was born in 1871, was married before she was 12 years of age, and gave birth to a daughter when she was 13. The daughter followed the example of her mother and married young, and lately, when 16 years old, gave birth to a child.

COL. NOYES IS DEAD.

Well-Known Resident of Baraboo Passes Away—Father of Judge A. H. Noyes.

Baraboo, Wis., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Col. D. K. Noyes died this morning of stomach and other troubles. He was the father of A. H. Noyes, now district judge at Nome, Alaska.

Col. D. K. Noyes was born at Tunbridge, Vt., October 28, 1820. He came to Wisconsin September 17, 1844, and settled in Dodgeville. He enlisted for service in the Mexican war, but peace was declared before his company was called to the front.

COL. D. K. NOYES.

He then went to Beloit, entering the law firm of Noggle & Spaulding, and in 1847 he was admitted to the bar. The same year he went to Baraboo and together with his brother started the Baraboo Republic.

When the Civil war broke out in 1861 he was one of the first to respond to the call for volunteers. He was made first lieutenant in Co. A, Sixth Wisconsin. He participated in all of the engagements until Antietam, where he was wounded and the amputation of his foot became necessary. In November, 1865, he was discharged with the rank of lieutenant-colonel. He was twice elected to the state Legislature, was the first state treasury agent and in 1867 was appointed postmaster at Baraboo. He held the office for seventeen years. Col. Noyes was a member of the Masonic and Odd Fellows lodges, and a prominent worker in both, as well as an enthusiastic member of the G. A. R.

June 18, 1898, Col. Noyes and his wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, his marriage to Miss Lucretia Barnes having taken place in Chelsea, Vt., in 1848.

Companions of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion are asked to attend the funeral without further notice.

Willard Bowen, Tomah.

Tomah, Wis., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Willard Bowen died at the home of his son, James Bowen, in this city. He was born at Johnstown, Fulton county, New York, June 6, 1813. In 1843 he went by horse and buggy to Buffalo, thence by boat to Detroit and there by buggy again to Delavan, this state, where after a few years' stay he moved to what is now Reedsburg, where he helped to roll up the first log cabin. # SHIPPED IN A TRUNK.

Game Warden Lucas of Fond du Lac Seizes Another Lot of Ducks.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Game Warden Lucas made another capture of ducks yesterday, confiscating forty-six mallards, which were carried in a trunk as baggage from Weyauwega to Oshkosh. Mr. Lucas was in Oshkosh during the day and at the Wisconsin Central depot stepped into the baggage car as the train from the north pulled in. One of the trunks in the car had a bunch of paper stuffed into a small hole near the lid. He pulled the paper out and with it came a bunch of feathers. The trunk was opened and forty-six mallard beauties were counted out. They were brought to Fond du Lac by the warden and sold to W. H. Coughlin.

BOTH HELD FOR TRIAL.

Man in Jail at Kaukauna Is Murphy, the Notorious Safe Blower.

Kaukauna, Wis., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Thomas Murphy, alias E. J. Edwards, and Henry Lewis had an examination this morning. The evidence shows beyond a doubt that Edwards' real name is Murphy, and that he has done time in Joliet, Ill. His picture, both in prison garb and citizens' clothes, was shown and the letters found in his possession addressed to Thomas Murphy help to fasten this upon him. The man of whom he purchased the powder and fuse for the Kaukauna job, Peter Rothe of Green Bay, gave his evidence in court fastening this part of the job upon Murphy. Murphy and Lewis are both bound over to the circuit court under bond of $500 each. They will be confined in jail until the trial.

TRIED TO KILL HIS WIFE.

James Lowe of Neillsville, who is on Trial, Pleads Insanity.

Neillsville, Wis., Nov. 24.—The case of the state against James Lowe is on trial in the circuit court. The defendant, who was a butcher here for many years, is charged with having assaulted his wife, shot her twice and cut her throat with intent to murder her. The attempted homicide is admitted by the defense, but a plea of insanity has been interposed. The assault was made in June, 1899, and the special plea of insanity was tried last May, the jury disagreeing. The trial will probably occupy ten days.

MADISON PLANT DEFECTIVE.

May Sue Detroit Company to Recover on Builder's Bond.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 24.—At a meeting of the city council City Attorney Aylward, in reporting on the status of the contract between the city of Madison and the American Sanitary Engineering company of Detroit, which built the city's sewage disposal plant, said that the Detroit company has not kept its part of the contract and that the city has the right to sue on the bond of the company. The bond is for $25,000.

FORTRESS IS CAPTURED.

Stronghold of Geronimo Destroyed by American Troops.

49 REBELS ARE KILLED.

Gen. Torres Reported to Have Been Captured by Gen. Grant—Americans Attacked by Bolomen.

Manila, Nov. 26.—The fortress of the insurgent chief, Geronimo, at Pinauran, which the insurgents boasted was impregnable, was destroyed by a picked force of the Forty-second and Twenty-seventh Infantry and Troop G of the Fourth cavalry, under Col. Thompson.

Geronimo and most of the rebels escaped. The leader has long harassed the Twenty-seventh Infantry, operating in the vicinity of San Mateo, Montalban, and Novaliches. His position was considered the strongest in Luzon. It was a stone fortress surmounting a steep hill surrounded by canyons. The Spanish forces lost heavily in attempting to take it.

Col. Thompson mobilized a thousand men at Montalban. The attack was made upon four sides—the main body under Maj. Carey of the Forty-second advancing from the south, Capt. Atkinson of the Twenty-seventh from the east, Capt. Casteel of the Twenty-seventh from the west, and Capt. Sloan of the Twenty-seventh from the north.

The ascents were steep and the men climbed them by grasping the shrubbery. It was impossible for the eastern column to reach the summit, but the others arrived after three hours' climbing under fire from the fortress and the hillside entrenchments.

The enemy's force, numbering several hundred, fled before the attackers reached the top. The Americans destroyed a thousand insurgent uniforms, scores of buildings, and large quantities of supplies and seized a barrel full of documents.

Private Hart of the Twenty-seventh and Private Koppner of the Forty-second and two native scouts were killed and twelve of the attacking force were wounded. The insurgent casualties could not be ascertained.

Lieut. Frederick W. Alstaetter of the United States engineering corps, who was recently released by the insurgents, arrived in Manila this evening. He had been in captivity at Bubalto since August 1. Gen. Funston surrendered the rebel Maj. Van Tuse on the release of Lieut. Alstaetter.

It is unofficially reported that Gen. Torres, the insurgent commander at Buiucan, has been captured by Gen. Grant's scouts. Gen. Grant wired Gen. Wheaton that the entire garrison at San Jose had been captured, but Gen. Torres was not among them.

Particulars have been received from Iloilo of the battle, October 30, at Bugason, island of Panay, when 200 bolomen and fifty riflemen attacked the Americans, who lost three killed.

It appears that Corp. Burns was boloed while reconnoitering and Lieut. Koontz and Sergt. Kitchen were pierced by spears while going to relieve an outpost.

When the garrison force attacked the rebels forty-nine of the latter were killed. None of the other parties of attacking natives made much of a stand and the insurgents lost 103 killed all told.

First Lieut. Albert E. McCabe of the Thirtieth Volunteer infantry has been appointed an inspector in the forestry bureau.

TART REPLY OF SHERIFF FREEMAN.

Will Not Allow Governor to Saddle Blame of Porter Lynching on Him.

Denver, Col., Nov. 26.—The Rocky Mountain News today prints the reply of Sheriff Freeman of Lincoln county to the letter of District Attorney McAllister of Colorado Springs, Col., concerning the prosecution of the persons who lynched Preston Porter at Limon, Col., recently. After telling of how he was influenced into taking Porter from Denver to Limon upon the assurance of leading citizens of Lincoln county that he would be allowed to pass through Limon unmolested to Hugo, where he would permitted to place Porter in the county jail, Sheriff Freeman declares that it would be impossible to get a jury in Lincoln or any adjoining county that would convict anyone charged with participation in the burning of Preston Porter. He concludes as follows:

"I do not justify the cremation, but I do object to having you and Gov. Thomas saddle the blame of this burning outrage on me and I will not involve Lincoln county in a needless and fruitless litigation against its own citizens."

LACE WORKERS TO BE ADMITTED.

Action of Philadelphia Officials in Excluding Dowie's Importations is Reversed.

This is a reversal of the action of the Philadelphia immigration officials, who had decided that the lacemakers should not be admitted to this country.

Thanksgiving has come again bringing families together and no matter what joy or sorrow, adversity or prosperity has entered our homes during the past year there is always much to be grateful for. To us as to most people who have been on earth some years our mind always reverts to the days of childhood and the happenings and faces that met us then and we seem to live more in retrospect than in the present.

George Scott received a telephone message Wednesday afternoon summoning him to the bedside of his aged mother at Armenia who was said to be so ill that recovery was doubtful. Baby Foley too has been very low with bowel trouble since the return home of the family, at this writing the little one seems to be mending.

Chas. and Harriet Whittlesey closed their respective schools No. 1 and 4 in Port Edwards Wednesday afternoon and spent the Thanksgiving holidays at the paternal home.

Mrs. James Gaynor left for Rochester, Minn., Tuesday to care for her father, who recently received severe injuries from a fall.

Henry Zirbel, Sr., returned home Wednesday night after being at work some days plastering at the Arpin buildings.

John Scott came down Saturday night and remained over Sunday with his family at the Scott and Foley home.

Mrs. Emma Provost and babe were visitors at the home of Daniel Rezin from Saturday noon till Monday evening.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Emmerich, who have just returned from their wedding trip.

Most of our men have been working on the public roads lately under the direction of road master J. W. Fitch.

Miss Myra Kruger and brothers spent Thanksgiving day with their cousin Mrs. Ward near Babcock.

Miss Eva and Master Emery Bennett entertained some of their young friends Thanksgiving day.

Mrs. Jerroid and son Page drove down to Cranmoor Tuesday on business.

Mrs. Daniel Rezin, Jr., visited at the Whittlesey home the first of the week.

Lily and Gilman Warner called upon Bertha Denske Thursday.

C. E. Lester returned from his Chicago trip first of the week.

Alfred Sweat of New Rome visited friends here Tuesday.

A Sure Cure for Croup.

The first indication of croup is hoarseness, and in a child subject to that disease it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is used in many thousands of homes in this broad land and never disappoints the anxious mothers. We have yet to learn of a single instance in which it has not proved effectual. No other preparation can show such a record—twenty-five years' constant use without a failure. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co.

Low Rates to the South.

Excursion tickets at reduced rates are now being sold by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway to the prominent resorts in the south, including Jacksonville, Fla., Mobile, Ala., New Orleans, La., Savannah, Ga., El Paso, Tex., which are good for return passage at any time prior to June 1st, 1901.
